BRITISH SIGHT ITALY SHORE

Churchill Trip Hailed as Invasion Sign

'Victory-This-Year' Talk Stirring London

British Expect All-Out Assault Against Germany From Many Quarters After Meeting With FDR.

BULLETIN

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Churchill's journey across the Atlantic for his sixth wartime meeting with President Roosevelt stirred spontaneous and optimistic talk in London today of a "victory-this-year" assault on Europe.

Virtually unanimous agreement was expressed on all sides that the Allied chieftains were getting together to lay final plans for the grand offensive in theaters of war other than the Mediterranean where overwhelming Allied military might already has asserted itself.

The presence of Britain's top-flight military men with Churchill in Quebec led to one conclusion—that United States, British and dominion forces soon would be storming the European continent from many directions in fulfillment of Churchill's own prediction of a combined action before winter.

The absence of Premier Josef Stalin was noted by most commentators.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's newspaper, the Yorkshire Post, said, however, it was understood that he had been invited but was unable to attend. The Post added that Stalin was being informed of developments "almost hourly."

The dominating position of the Allies, who now hold the initiative everywhere—in the Pacific and Europe as well—was admitted in a broadcast by German radio commentator Lt. Gen. Kurt Dietmar who told the German people, "Germany and her allies are now on the defensive."

With Italy virtually beaten to her knees, it was generally regarded as certain that the forthcoming talks between the British prime minister and the American president would deal primarily with putting a quick end to the Italian campaign so the Allies can turn their full attention to Germany.

The next move was expected to be on an even broader scale than the successful Sicilian invasion, with the objective of forcing Germany to withdraw a substantial

Legion Delegates Urge Leadership In Post-War Plans

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The Ohio American Legion was in full accord today with the provisions of the Ball-Burton senate bill which asks the United States to take the initiative in international postwar problems.

In the final session yesterday of a three-day war conference, delegates approved the objectives of the bill by resolution.

Rossiter C. Williams of Oak Hill was elected commander succeeding Martin V. Coffey of Middletown. Other officers elected were Richard A. Lindermann of Delphos, vice commander; R. B. Tharp of Washington C. H., treasurer, and Rev. Leonard T. Gerrity, chaplain of the National military home at Dayton, chaplain.

Milt Campbell, the Legion's National defense director, spoke against any change in the nation's liquor laws until men in the armed forces have returned so they may express their views.

Japs Reveal Philippine Insurrectionist's Death.

(By United Press)

Tokyo radio said Wednesday that Jose Santiago, a leader of the Philippine insurrection, had "joined his late comrades at rest Tuesday morning," presumably meaning the aged patriot had died.

The broadcast, heard by the United Press at San Francisco, paid tribute to Santiago's valor in resisting American forces in "stubborn fighting for more than three years.

CONNEAUT—(AP)—Five-year-old Paul Fedor fell from the handlebars of his brother's bicycle beneath the wheels of a truck and was killed. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fedor.

BACKS BAN ON DRAFT OF DADS

House Rules Committee Head Promises Early Action When Congress Returns.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The congressional campaign to prevent the drafting of fathers today received the support of the chairman of the house rules committee who promised early hearings on such legislation after congress reconvenes.

Rules Chairman Adolph J. Sabath, D., Ill., ordinarily an administration supporter, gave qualified endorsement of the proposal of Chairman Andrew J. May, D., Ky., of the house military affairs committee to eliminate all fathers—post or pre-Pearl Harbor varieties—from the draft pool. Sabath would limit the proposal to men who were married before the United States got into the war.

Quick action by the rules committee would be necessary to bring such a bill to the floor prior to Oct. 1—the date set for eliminating the ban against drafting pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

FEARS SHORTAGE

Guffey Says Strikes Cut Coal Output By 10 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Sen. Joseph Guffey (D) Pa., today forecast a shortage of 10 per cent in bituminous coal production this year due to the miners' strikes and failure of congress to extend the Guffey coal act.

The forecast was regarded as reasonable by some officials of the bituminous coal division of the interior department, whose figures indicated doubt that the high goals set for the year can be attained even by high-pressure production methods the rest of the year.

The effect of the shortage is expected to be more pronounced in industry than with individual householders, but the coal production situation is being watched closely by government officials.

SEES NORMANDIE DRY IN 4 DAYS

Salvage Officer Says Work 4 Months Ahead of Plan.

NEW YORK —(INS)— With the salvaged liner Normandie standing at a 39.8 degree angle Capt. J. T. Tooker, civilian salvage officer who supervised raising of the vessel, today said the giant ship may be finally pumped out in four days and that operations were four to five months ahead of schedule.

The re-named U. S. S. Lafayette should be at a 30 degree when all the water is pumped out, Tooker said. When this list is reached salvage men will knock out concrete ballast and clean the ship's rusted and barnacled hull.

Bucyrus Provides Surprise In Listless Primaries In Area

Preceded by listless campaigns, municipal primary elections in the Mansfield area yesterday were marked by a light and uneventful vote, along with the rest of Ohio that was too busy with war work to take much interest in politics.

Biggest upset of any in this area occurred at Bucyrus yesterday, where Richard L. Hertzer, former Crawford county WPA certifying agent piled up a 2-1 margin to defeat Mayor William G. Whiteamire for the Democratic nomination.

Hertzer polled 915 votes in a four-way race. O. K. Bender had 274; Whiteamire, 277, and Carl E. Light, 82.

The Republican nominee, Clyde M. Wilson, an auctioneer, was unopposed.

City Auditor Esther M. Dobbins, (D.), also unopposed, lead the ticket polling a total of 1,213 votes.

In the lone race at Shelby, a non-partisan election, Chester A. Bell and Walter Mathias, won the nominations for second ward councilman over John Yockey.

Bell polled 219 votes, Mathias, 103, and Yockey, 49.

Law Director Frank M. Long, who was unopposed, won the nomination for mayor when the Richland county board of elections ruled a write-in naming Bert Fix illegal.

Election officials said there was no provisions under the charter form of municipal government, under which the city operates for nomination of write-in candidates.

Mayor W. R. Morris will oppose Atty. Theodore Lutz in the fall for law director.

A total of 411 ballots were cast

SIX SOLDIERS KILLED BY BOLT

Lightning Strikes Group at Fort Belvoir.

FORT BELVOIR, Va. — (AP) — Lightning struck among six soldiers doing training work on the Fort Belvoir drill field late yesterday, fatally injuring the entire group.

The six were the only men on the field at the time, according to Capt. Don Swan, and no one else was hurt.

The victims, all privates, and members of Company C, provisional battalion replacement, were: Philip W. Hiance, Cold Springs, Ky.; Russell R. Heller, Philadelphia; James A. Hood, Augusta, Ga., Chester E. Dearing, Richmond, Va.; C. J. Caverly, Muskegon, Mich.; and Julian D. Rosin, Chicago.

Navy Reveals Total of 199 Jap Planes Bagged.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The navy boosted by 52 planes today the number of Japanese aircraft destroyed during the first 10 days of the present offensive in the central Solomon islands. The aggregate was raised from 147 to 199 Japanese planes shot down by United States air forces and anti-aircraft units.

The American fliers lost 34 planes but 16 pilots were rescued and the ratio of losses stood at approximately 6 to 1.

Says He Knows Nothing About Change In Welles' Job.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary of State Hull denied today that Undersecretary Sumner Welles is to receive a roving assignment and be replaced by Norman Armour, United States ambassador to Argentina.

Asked about the published reports, Hull said this newest story was a recurrence of similar reports circulated in recent years and on each occasion denied.

Hull added that he knew no more about the present rumors concerning Welles than he did about the previous stories. They all fell in the same category, he told reporters.

GETS STATE AID ON AIRPORT JOB

City 'Loaned' Services of Negotiator To Obtain Land For Air Field.

Mayor W. J. Locke said today that the state highway department had agreed to "loan" Thomas E. Cowgill, who obtained the right-way negotiator, to the city to deal with property owners for the 1,000 acres of land needed for the airport expansion project.

Cowgill, who obtained the right-of-way for the South Main street-Lexington avenue widening, will be available next week, the mayor said.

The city will be required to pay his salary during the time he is employed on the airport job, and the cost is expected to be considerably less than the $500 council appropriated for the work last week, according to the mayor.

The state highway department is interested in the airport project, it was pointed out, since it will be necessary to relocate State Route 13 to open the way for the airport construction.

The land must be obtained by the city and the highway relocated before the end of this year so the federal government can begin construction work on the big airport early in 1944.

Defense Starts Own Parade Of Witnesses In Slander Case

The defense began a parade of witnesses of its own in the Weekley-Reed slander suit in common pleas court today.

Attorneys for Dr. John S. Reed, Butler physician, who is being sued by Willard S. Weekley, former Butler school superintendent, for slander and defamation of character, sought through testimony of eight witnesses this morning, to show that Weekley's character and morals were not above suspicion. On cross-examination Weekley's attorneys sought to prove to the jury of seven women and five men that the testimony was prejudiced.

It was the third day of the trial, which is being heard by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in a courtroom packed with partisans of both sides, an outgrowth of Butler school difficulties, which resulted in Weekley's surrendering his post at the end of the 1942 school year.

Defense attorneys indicated that they planned to call eight or 10 more witnesses in presenting their case, while Weekley's attorneys revealed that they planned to call at least a dozen witnesses in rebuttal.

Thus it seemed likely that the case would not be completed before the week-end.

On two occasions in the past two days of the trial, feeling has run so high among the spectators that Judge Kalbfleisch has had to remind them they are guests of the court and unless they conduct themselves as such he will clear the courtroom.

In rapid succession this morning Kenneth Wareham, a Butler

COUNCIL DUCKS ON PAY BOOST, STIRS UPROAR

Selons Study Issue In Secret, Then Put It Over Until '44 Budget's Drawn.

EMPLOYES' IRE STIRRED

Cries of 'Pussyfooting' and 'Politics' Raised as City Workers Learn of Action.

City council today had brought down on itself a storm of protests from city employes by ducking the city worker pay boost issue last night in a closed committee session following a special council meeting.

A near revolt was brewing in the police and fire departments which launched a move for a $35 monthly pay increase six weeks ago. They were joined later by other city workers and last night the health department submitted its request to council for consideration for raises.

A brief statement issued today by Councilman C. N. Shultz, heading a special council committee named to study the pay boost requests, said that because "it would be so near to the close of this year before any action which council might take in regard to salary adjustments would become effective, we believe it is advisable to defer any action until the 1944 budget is prepared. At that time the matter will be given due consideration."

Lee Remy, chairman of the police committee on salaries, said police representatives planned to meet this afternoon with the committee of firemen to decide on their next move. The police-firemen committee is headed by Capt. Frank Stahl of the fire department.

"We'd like to get council to decide this matter at an open meeting so all of us can hear how each member of council votes on the issue," Remy said.

At least a half dozen police and fire department members threatened to quit unless they get raises. Others hurled charges

TAMMANY GAINS

Primary Returns Indicate Labor Party Strength.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Unofficial and incomplete returns from New York's primary indicated today Michael J. Kennedy's Tammany leadership had been greatly strengthened and the American labor party's left wing had retained control of the party in New York county.

Results so far from the Bronx showed an apparent victory for the ALP right wing while the vote in the intra-party fight in Brooklyn still was obscure. The right wing has said it would support a fourth term for President Roosevelt.

Final results of the elections, marked by a light vote, will not be known for several days as all voting was by paper ballot, making the count slow in tabulation.

RUMOR PERSISTS

Pittsburgh Hears Agents Will Supervise Gasoline Sales.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Reports persisted today that the office of price administration would assign agents to supervise operation of strategically located filling stations in the Pittsburgh district shortly unless an increasing gasoline shortage is alleviated.

The Morning Post-Gazette stated the plan for governmental control of a major part of gasoline available for civilian use to assure fuel for essential vehicles is "being held in abeyance."

Senator Wants Super-Group To Control Prices.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Sen. "Cotton Ed" Smith (D) S. C., chairman of the senate agriculture committee, today proposed a super-board composed of representatives of all sections of the country to rule price-fixing.

He declared that one of the difficulties of satisfying the needs of the nation through the OPA is that men unfamiliar with industries and local conditions are fixing prices.

Bombs Crash On Nuremberg In Night Raid

Railway Center Hit On Anniversary Of Goering's Empty Boast.

BULLETIN

LONDON —(AP)— British bombers dropped more than 1,500 tons of bombs (more than 1,680 American tons) last night on Nuremberg, important railway and industrial center in southern Germany and a Nazi party rallying point, the air ministry announced today.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — British bombers made a heavy attack last night on the city of Nuremberg, important railway and industrial center in southern Germany and a Nazi party rallying point, the air ministry announced today.

Sixteen bombers were lost in the raid, the second successive night attack on Germany, a communique said. Three enemy fighters were reported shot down.

Ironically it was just four years ago today that Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering boasted to the German public that not a single enemy bomb would be permitted to fall upon Germany.

Nuremberg is 525 miles from Britain by airline and just 75 miles short of Berlin. The city is the junction of two great trunk railway lines—one running from the Ruhr to southeast Germany and the other from Berlin and central Germany to Munich and Italy.

There have been many recent reports that Italy is being reinforced with German troops and munitions, and if this is the case probably much of these reinforcements are flowing through Nuremberg.

The city is the site of large factories engaged in the manufacture of Diesel engines for submarines and producing tanks, aircraft parts and motors.

On the outskirts of Nuremberg is located a Messerschmitt fighter plane manufacturing plant.

The raid followed by 24 hours thundering RAF attacks on the twin cities of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen in the Rhineland.

German air raiders retaliated by making their first attack on Brit-

Navy Shells Naples Shipyards While 8th Army Gains On Messina.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—The British Eighth army in Sicily advanced to within sight of the Italian mainland while British warships bombarded Italian shipyards in the Bay of Naples, 130 miles south of Rome, and other mainland military targets, Allied headquarters announced today.

British forces advanced seven miles along the east coast of Sicily under the shadow of Mt. Etna to capture the town of Guardia, 16 miles south of Taormina and 40 miles from Messina, the bulletin announced. British Tommies on the east slopes of Mt. Etna thus gained their first view of the Italian mainland.

The inshore bombardment of the construction and repair yards at Castellamare at the southern edge of the Bay of Naples took place Monday night, with British destroyers and cruisers moving in close to the target to pour round after round into the yards which were capable of handling ships up to 500 feet in length.

At the same time other units of the fleet attacked Cape Vaticano on the instep of the Italian boot about 25 miles north of San Giovanni where the main Italian railroad lines operate close to the shore of the Tyrrhenian sea.

On the north coast American Seventh army forces "consolidated the positions reached in the successful landing operations at the mouth of the Rosmarino river reported yesterday" the Allied communique said.

(The Italian communique, recorded by the Associated Press from a Rome broadcast, said heavy defensive fighting took place in the central and northern sectors of the Sicily front "in order to check the enemy advance."

(The communique announced a total of 124 persons killed and 392 injured in the last RAF bombings of Turin, Milan and Genoa in northern Italy, including 101 killed and 267 injured at Milan. The communique said Messina

UNCHECKED: Russians Rolling On Toward Kharkov, Bryansk

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(INS)—The official German news agency reported today that Soviet troops have broken through German lines 100 miles east of Smolensk, according to a British broadcast heard by NBC.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—The Red army is rolling on unchecked in its twin drives toward the Ukrainian city of Kharkov and Bryansk to the north, capturing village after village and inflicting heavy losses on the retreating Germans, the Russians declared today.

With Kharkov pocketed on three sides by a five-pronged drive, another Russian column has bitten deep into the rich Russian grain territory and is only 14 miles from Sumy and 190 miles east of the capital city of Kiev, a Soviet communique disclosed.

Sumy, an important railroad point, is located some 90 miles northwest of Kharkov and the line linking the steel center with the German base at Bryansk.

The Russians announced their forces advancing toward Bryansk along the railway from Orel had captured a railway town 45 miles east of the city.

Seventy towns and villages were reported captured by the Russians in the Kharkov sector and 30 more in the Bryansk area as the Red army marked up important gains in a general advance along the entire active front almost 300 miles in length.

One of the five Russian columns threatening Kharkov has captured Slatino, 12 miles north. A second

CHOKING: Yanks Clamp Hard On Japs Remaining at Bairoko

(By Associated Press)

American army and marine troops are choking off the last Japanese holding on New Georgia island in the Solomons at Bairoko harbor. Allied headquarters announced today, tightening a semi-circular trap by land and dooming the garrison except for a possible night escape across Kula gulf.

To the west on New Guinea island, Allied bombers ripped the enemy base of Salamaua with 85 more tons of bombs Tuesday, adding new ruin to the scrubby little town shaken by at least 892 tons of explosives since June 30. Liberators knocked out a battery of heavy Japanese artillery. Allied troops are closing in upon Bobdubi, five miles below Salamaua.

U. S. B-25 bombers from India pounded Japanese bases and shipping in Burma in continued aerial attrition, while across the Pacific in the Aleutians the silence regarding Kiska rekindled speculation whether an American assault might be impending to wrest that one remaining island outpost from the enemy.

The trap about Bairoko harbor was closed Sunday when the U. S. right flank reached the Bairoko river two miles southeast of the harbor, joining patrols that had advanced northward. The American line extends over a six-mile arc.

The enemy is reported running short of food and ammunition, with some barges bringing in supplies by night.

Wise Mother Gives Baby Love First

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

LAST SUMMER I was able to observe my tiny grandchild and her mother over a period of two months. Later I spent several days with another granddaughter of two, her sister four, and their parents. I observed that both these young mothers often kissed and cuddled the baby or young child. I saw each of the older pair often put their arms about their mother's or father's neck in tender affection.

I recall the many times I saw my own three children when they were infants and tots enjoying with their mother many experiences of tender affection, not to mention memories of like privileges of my own.

While my eldest two children were mere babies, John B. Watson, then of Johns Hopkins University, was warning mothers to beware of fondling their children. An amazing number of mothers took him at his word when he advised them not to kiss and cuddle their babies.

I consider this a dangerous and crude doctrine. Children today need more love and affection from their parents than ever before. The dad who tenderly puts his hand upon his teen-age boy's shoulder or gives him a loving pat, and the mother who often puts her arm about her daughter, is cultivating very precious relationships. I wonder how many boys and girls in these times are deceiving their parents and going astray for want of affection.

But it's not the fondling that is of first importance but the feeling of genuine affection expressed in the eyes, face, voice. What can reveal so much endearment as the human voice? Nor is it just the voice but something more far reaching still, indicated by the way we breathe, listen or talk to the child and the way he in turn responds to us. True affection means practice, sympathy, understanding. It means putting ourselves in our imagination in the place of the child, whether he is two or sixteen.

Q. What is the most common arithmetic difficulty of the child of eight or ten?

A. Counting out the simple addition and subtraction facts instead of knowing them by heart. Sheets with the 100 basic addition facts and the 100 basic subtraction facts and how to memorize them may be had without cost to you by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Q. My eight-year-old daughter is a poor sleeper. Sometimes she has night terrors. Please help me. A self-add essed stamped envelope is enclosed.

A. Cultivate a calmer atmosphere for her day by day, with radio silent most of the time except for good music. Treat her as a nervous child. My special bulletins, "Sleep Problems," and "Nervous Habits in The Child," are enclosed.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

From beneath my eyelashes I shot a quick careful glance around the room into which Ruth Hayes had summoned me. But there was no trace anywhere of the rolls of bills which I knew Olina had brought in the expensive bag with which her mother, Olga, had outfitted her for the bizarre expedition. I was not surprised, for the secret of that money was one she would not risk, exposing to the scrutiny of a supposed hotel chambermaid.

It was no secret, however, that she was in a vile humor. That fact was written in every line of her distorted face, and sounded in her voice as she thrust the bag at me so savagely that I had to dodge to keep it from hitting me.

"Pass this to that tramp out there!" she snapped viciously. "Give her the key, too. I'll be right at her heels, but I don't want her to see me."

Madge Hurries Out.

Thankfully, I heard her door close behind me, and with a quick movement I seized Olina's arm with a muttered "Quiet!", pushed open the door of the next room which Dicky was holding ajar, and thrust her into it.

"Stay here until I come back or telephone," I said, and went swiftly out again, closing the door behind me.

I had no more than time to get across the hall when Ruth Hayes came out of her room and walked toward me.

"Come here," she said in low tones when she had reached the elevator. I noticed that she did not ring the bell.

"Did she go down?" she asked.

"I think so," I replied.

"Think so!" she snarled. "Don't you know?"

A Glib Story.

"No, ma'am," I said glibly. "She was standing by the elevator, ringing, the last I saw her. Then that sick man in 1718 called me. He wanted me to fix his blinds so the sun wouldn't come in, and told me to shut the door, as he was going to take a nap, and wouldn't need anything for a couple of hours. He said he'd telephone down and have them tell me to come in when he wanted me. He has the telephone right by his bed.

"What do you think I care about the man in the next room?" she demanded. "Then you didn't see her go down in the elevator?"

"No, Madam, but I'm sure she must have. She wouldn't very well walk down from this floor."

"I didn't know whether you're a plain fool or trying to be impertinent!" she said. "In either case, get out of my way."

Reports on Ruth.

I wondered if she would remember the guard, still riding up and down in the elevator. Then, dashing toward Dicky's room, I unlocked it, and holding the door with one eye on the elevator lest Ruth should suddenly return, I spoke quickly.

"She's gone down!" I announced breathlessly. "Dressed for the street?" Dicky asked going directly to the telephone.

"Yes — and carrying a small suitcase," I told him.

"Then beat it, until I call you," he instructed, and I went out into the corridor again with only a quick glance of encouragement at Olina, who sat in a corner of the room, obviously waiting for whatever turn her adventure might take next.

It was almost five minutes before Dicky's stentorian call of "Maid!" sounded, and when I came into his room, he executed an old-fashioned stately, dance step with imaginary coat tails held out at arms length.

"She's on her way to wherever she's bound!" he exulted. "And Dad's sleuths are close behind her! If they don't find out where she's taking that mazuma, they'll probably commit hari kari rather than face the Chief. But I'll bank on them.

"Now then," he continued, "to get out of here ourselves. Olina, you had better go first. I'll put you in charge of your special guard, and you get back to the Lansfield, and your mother as quickly as the Lord will let you. If the Chief is there, tell him I'm waiting only until my wife gets her make-up off before I bring her back to the Lansfield."

"I'll tell him before I do anything else," Olina promised, and Dicky went out into the corridor, returning in an instant with the man who had gone down in the elevator, I put a worried question to my husband.

"Do you think Ruth may come back?" I asked.

BROWN RICE

Brown rice is the rice grain from which only the hull has been removed. It has some of the bran coats left on which contain valuable minerals and vitamins, so use it for health as well as variety. Brown rice requires longer cooking than white and the flavor is nutty. It can be used the same as white rice, in soups, stews, creamed and escalloped dishes.

Take Good Care Of Umbrella

By VIVIAN BROWN

(AP Features Writer)

Better take care of your prewar umbrella.

Always brush it before you use it. Shake it well before opening, to prevent jamming of the ribs, and be sure the tie band is not caught.

A wet umbrella should always be left open to dry, so the fabric will dry smoothly and quickly.

Silk umbrellas dry out when not in use, so during a long spell of dry weather they should be given a good wetting under the shower or with the garden hose. To clean, brush with a soft cloth.

The best method of cleaning colored cotton umbrellas is by brushing with a soft clothes brush.

Oiled silk and white cotton umbrellas can be washed with mild soap and water, rinsed and left open to dry.

At the first sign of a break in the fabric or loosening of tips, have the umbrella repaired. If the fabric is too far gone to be of any use, any woman who knows how to use patterns can recover the frame herself. Just use the old umbrella cover as a pattern in cutting the new material.

It will pay you to take these precautions, as new war-style umbrellas are highly simplified and restricted as to size and number of ribs.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

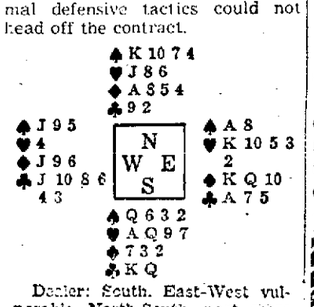
"The Authority on Authorities"

DESPERATE PLAY RIGHT

THERE ARE times when you must play with desperation as your motivating force, as ordinary moves bear no promise of working. Declarers show that principle when trying for unlikely divisions of the hidden cards of a certain suit or suits since their contracts are hopeless unless those conditions exist. Defenders should do likewise when it appears that normal defensive tactics could not head off the contract.



Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable. North-South, part score of 30.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Dbl
Pass	2 ♣	2 ♦	Pass

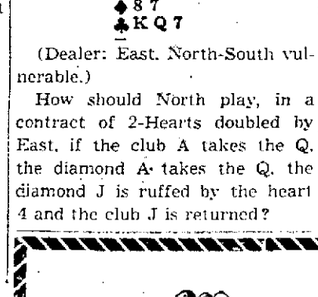
A very fine defensive player in the East counted himself for two tricks with his black aces, probable also two in diamonds, for his side's book, but probably none in hearts because of South's opening bid. The likelihood that his partner could take any trick seemed so remote as to be non-existent, so far as high cards are concerned. But there was a slight chance that West might have a heart singleton, which appeared to be a desperate chance, since East could stop the trump drawing with the spade A.

So East led the heart 2—which might fool the declarer in some way—instead of the fourth-best 3. North let this run to his 8, then led the spade 2 toward the Q. East came right in with the A and led the heart 3. When West ruffed this, the contract was doomed, as East was certain to take two tricks in diamonds plus one in clubs.

If East had made the normal lead of his diamond K, and North played the trump suit the winning way, no tricks would have been taken by the defense except the four which East counted in his own hand, and so the contract would have been made.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

How should North play, in a contract of 2-Hearts doubled by East, if the club A takes the Q, the diamond A takes the Q, the diamond J is ruffed by the heart 4 and the club J is returned?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Aug. 12.

According to the lunar transits active on this day the situation is rather adverse. There may be many phases of opposition or antagonism, from high places as well as in less consequential circles, and manifesting open and quarrelsome behavior as well as hidden, overt, and undercover intrigues. Be watchful on all fronts, alert to all manner of schemes, pitfalls and entangling alliances. Steer a clear course, do some straight thinking and all should thrive.

TELEPHONE 4251-6

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

LONDON—(By Wireless)—As we see now regarding Italy, one of the Allied problems that will accompany victory everywhere will be to find a way to launch self-government in liberated territory. Our lack of preparation caught us shamefully unready for Mussolini's resignation and led to the humiliating conflict in American broadcasts, with OWI calling the king of Italy moronic and at the same time General Eisenhower commending him for ousting Mussolini. And President Roosevelt leaping in with a public rebuke of OWI about the time Eisenhower was switching over to a tough line—when Badoglio began stalling.

Clapper

The policy of using the Allied commanding general in the Mediterranean theater as an outlet for psychological-warfare handouts seems open to question. Why should the general in command of a big operation like this have to be a mouthpiece for political warfare?

What have all our mystery boys around Washington been doing all this time, that we come up now undecided whether to call the king of Italy names or try to do business with him?

Fortunately we have time to profit by this awkward exposure of Allied policymakers sound asleep when the first big opportunity knocked. Especially should that embarrassing experience cause us to be sure we are not similarly found wanting with regard to preparing for the liberation of France. That may not be so far off. Italian troops occupy some French territory—Corsica, and the southeastern corner of France from the Rhone east and from Lyon south.

Forty-eight hours after Mussolini's capitulation General De Gaulle broadcast that no Allied settlement with Italy could be valid or lasting without French participation. This was a plain warning to the Allies to end their policy of ignoring the French Committee of Liberation.

The De Gaulle utterance, made without consulting some of his more moderate followers, was regarded as tactless and caused considerable Allied irritation, but it was the kind of thing we may expect as long as we ignore the fact that French interests will be directly concerned the moment Italy capitulates. As matters stand today there is nobody representing France with whom we could officially discuss matters except General Giraud, who is generally subject to the control of the French committee of national liberation, the existence of which we do not recognize.

The absurdity of the Allied position in that respect will become more than academic the moment Italy quits. Actually it is more than academic now, because every day's delay is losing time and adding to the resentment which might make the future more difficult and which certainly hampers those Frenchmen who are preparing the machinery for a resumption of self-government in France.

The committee members are middle-of-the-roaders, concerned with preventing dictatorship and with making preparations so that elections will be automatic. They need the help now of Allied recognition for the committee.

It would be well if recognition were limited and conditioned. The committee limits itself, on the basis of letters from Giraud and De Gaulle, to exercise its functions until "the day upon which the state of liberation of territory shall permit the formation, in conformity with the laws of the republic, of a provisional government to which it shall hand over its powers. At the latest this date shall be that of the total liberation of the territory of France."

Recognition could well be limited to the boundaries which the committee sets out for itself. Unless the Allies succeed in giving sufficient strength and prestige to such efforts for setting self-governing machinery in motion, we must be prepared for a de-facto assumption of power by De Gaulle. If the Allies fail to support machinery for the rebirth of the republic, so that plans will all be definitely ready to be activated, then the day of liberation will be a day of tragic confusion and thwarted hopes.

OHIO DRIVER LAWS TIGHTEN UP NEXT MONTH

Amendments Provide Financial Compensation For Accident Victims, Boost Penalties.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The state highway department reminded more than 2,000,000 Ohio automobile drivers today that drastic changes in the state's motor vehicle laws become effective during August and September.

Amendments passed by the recent legislature to promote safety and insure financial compensation to innocent traffic accident victims include these, effective Sept. 20:

When a judgment is obtained in a court of record against an individual as a result of a traffic accident, he must satisfy the judgment or be deprived of his driving rights for five years.

His right to drive cannot be suspended, however, until the registrar of motor vehicles has served notice requiring the individual to satisfy or stay execution of the judgment within 30 days from the date of the notice, or show cause why the driving license should not be lifted.

Further, the registrar is required to vacate the suspension order upon proof that the judgment has been satisfied.

If the operator of a motor vehicle is convicted of manslaughter resulting from the operation of a vehicle, of operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor or narcotics; of failure to stop after an accident, or of commission of a felony in which his vehicle is used, the registrar shall revoke his driving license for three years unless the individual proves his ability to meet all damages.

If a driver continues to operate a car after revocation of his license, upon conviction he faces possible imprisonment of not less than six months and a fine up to $500.

An amendment effective Aug. 24 liberalizes the driver licensing law for service men and women home on furlough. This will permit any member of the armed forces to drive without a license providing he held a license prior to entering the service.

In addition, the registrar of motor vehicles may waive examination of a person formerly in service who seeks a driver's license. The waiver will be granted on presentation of an honorable discharge certificate showing the applicant has no physical or mental disabilities.

Another amendment lowers from 18 to 16 years the age limit for a chauffeur's permit.

LEWIS REUNION WITH AFL HITS ANOTHER SNAG

Both Organizations Trying To Recruit Chemical Workers of Nation.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO — A new complication arose today to dim the possibility that John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers would gain readmittance to the American Federation of Labor.

The new factor is a campaign by the AFL to organize chemical workers—a campaign rivaling that of Lewis' pet District 50, which has been recruiting membership from chemical workers in the tremendously expanded munitions industry.

President William Green of the AFL disclosed at a press conference that the AFL has organized about 200 local unions representing "at least" 50,000 chemical workers throughout the nation. The AFL executive council, which is considering Lewis' application for reaffiliation of the UMW, also will consider a proposal to charter an international union of chemical workers, Green said.

The disclosure emphasized that District 50, whose membership parallels that of many other well established AFL craft unions, was a major stumbling block in the return of the UM...

A tinge of the bitterness engendered when Lewis split the AFL in 1936 to form the Congress of Industrial Organizations arose again yesterday to place another obstacle in the way of reaffiliation.

President Lloyd Thrush of the Progressive Mine Workers of America, a small AFL affiliate which fought Lewis' powerful UMW for supremacy in midwestern coal fields, appeared before the executive council to oppose Lewis' application.

The PMW claims membership of about 35,000 miners, most of them employed in Illinois mines, and whether it could defeat the application of the UMW, with a membership of more than a half million, remained to be seen. But veteran labor observers agreed that Thrush's statement to the executive council almost slammed the door in Lewis' face.

Thrush charged that Lewis once sought to wreck the AFL, and if readmitted would attempt "to ruin it again."

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—I never did give much importance to the document called the resolution of the presidium of the executive committee of the Communist International which was broadcast last May and ballyhooed the world over and accepted by most of the world as an act dissolving the so-called comintern, which is Russia's fifth column in other countries, including ours. Any government which was capable of maintaining such an organization in the first place would not hesitate to practice a small deception in its own interests, and intelligent and wary people cannot be expected to believe anything it says or rely on any of its promises.

Pegler

The communist faith is so treacherous and immoral that no act which to normal and decent human beings is wrong is forbidden a communist if it serves his political beliefs and aims. Anything that serves communism is right and good, and that is the only moral test that a communist knows. To him it is not wrong to commit a wrong but it is grievously wrong to refuse to do so if the interests of communism seem to require such commission. He is exactly like the Nazi and the Fascist in this respect and the fact that he is at odds with the Fascist and Nazi and, for this reason is killing large numbers of Nazis, should not confuse our judgment.

Some of our statesmen and our people go in fear that if we recognize these truths and keep them to the fore by discussion Josef Stalin will be hurt in his feelings and moved to decisions harmful to us. This is an absurd proposition and more uncomplimentary to Stalin than anything that could be said about the known duplicities of his communists in our midst, for it assumes that he is a man who would make important decisions petulantly when the fact is that Russia's interests are his only guide in all decisions. He would neither take any action unfavorable to us for any such reason nor be swerved from any such decision out of gratitude or friendliness begotten by any act of appeasement on our part.

So even if the resolution of the presidium of the executive committee and so forth had, in fact, professed to be a dissolution of the fifth column known as the comintern and represented here in a number of CIO unions which enjoy the favor of the New Deal administration, no shrewd or cautious American would have had any excuse for believing it. As the resolution itself said, in the course of a long and strikingly Hitleresque confusion of ideological jargon and double talk: "Communists have never been supporters of the conservation of organizational forms that have outlived themselves." This means that if and when the communists decide to reorganize their fifth column and reshape it and rename it, they will do so, but nowhere in the resolution is there any excuse for believing that they have any intention to abandon its activities and purposes.

But the fact is that this resolution did not announce the dissolution of the comintern, and the further fact that editorial writers and savants and commuters of the 5:15 all thought it did constitute a triumph for those who composed the resolution. They tossed off a whole newspaper column of rhetorical rope-tricks and by the time the saps got down to the important part the effect on them as the same as that induced by a particularly goofy chapter of Mein Kampf. This is not accidental. It is methodical.

Did the last paragraph of this resolution say the comintern had been dissolved? Well, what do you think?

It says the presidium and so forth, "puts forth the following proposal for ratification by the sections of the Communist International."

The "following proposal" is that the comintern be dissolved but the resolution itself is not an act of dissolution, although it was gulped down as such all over the world and the communists, themselves, in the United States secretly chortled over the dumb stupidity of their enemies in deceiving themselves through careless reading.

I am afraid that it is going to be necessary to stand toe-to-toe with Joe Davies and Henry Wallace on this issue of communism in our country because Davies, greatly swollen with self-importance, and Wallace, grim and hot-eyed with the zeal of the political bigot, would have our people trust Stalin and the communists with unquestioning faith—which is one sure way to set our country up for a serious disappointment.

SAILOR MISSING

New London Boy Was Aboard Submarine In Pacific.

NEW LONDON — Robert H. Pfeifer, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pfeifer, of north of New London, was listed as "missing in action" by the navy today.

Pfeifer, a machinist mate aboard a U. S. submarine, which his parents said had been operating in the Pacific, enlisted in the service in April, 1940. His parents last heard from him about 10 weeks ago.

A graduate of New London high school he took his "boot training" at Great Lakes Naval training station at Chicago.

RATION TOKENS DUE ON JAN. 1

Under Plan You'll Give Stamp and Get 'Change' In Glass or Plastic.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — A new ration stamp book, yet to be issued, would contain the stamps to be exchanged for plastic or glass ration tokens, the Office of Price Administration indicated today.

Louis Kroeger, OPA rationing official, announced yesterday in Chicago that use of tokens in making rationed food purchases would begin about Jan. 1. Tokens would be in two denominations for each food classification, five-point tokens being approximately the size of a quarter and one-point tokens about the size of a nickel.

OPA spokesmen said that such a plan had been under serious consideration for some time as a means of easing the burden of grocers swamped with thousands of ration stamps which they must count and bank.

Under a token system, the shopper would present a ration stamp of large denomination, possibly worth an entire month's allotment of rationed food, in making the initial purchase in a ration period. Tokens would then be given in change and would constitute negotiable ration currency for the remainder of the period.

While it is possible that stamps in war ration book three, which will be put into use about the middle of September, can be designated for use with tokens, the possibility was stronger that a specially designed stamp in war ration book four would be more suitable for the purpose.

Mansfield mothers are learning their geography now that their sons are stationed all over the world. City librarian says that many mothers have asked for articles and books concerning the places where the armed forces are stationed. The Aleutian islands are frequently asked about. An interesting article on the Aleutians appears in the August issue of the National Geographic magazine which is now available at the library, the librarian said.

You've probably seen and laughed at the cartoons of a WAC or WAVE looking longingly at a new hat or the latest in wearing apparel but here's one. Today in one of the local men's clothing stores two sailors were "just looking around." Probably they, like their sisters in uniform, were engaging in a little wishful thinking, sartorially speaking.

Prominence is given in this week's issue of Liberty magazine to an article by George B. Park, formerly of Mansfield, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Holcombe, 312 Heineman boulevard. Park, formerly with Westinghouse here, is now associated with the publicity department of General Electric in Bridgeport, Conn. His article is entitled "Personal Effects" and deals with the thoughts of a man whose duty it is to bury the dead after a battle. In an introductory note, Paul Hunter, publisher of Liberty, says it is offered "as an inspiring but at the same time disturbing bit of prose."

SAYS FARMERS WON'T GET MORE

Holman Told Farm Milk Price Can't Be Raised For at Least 3 Months.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—There will be no increase in farm milk prices in Ohio for at least three months and maybe not then, says Charles W. Holman of the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation.

Reporting on a conference of milk producers' representatives from Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and West Virginia with War Food Administration officials yesterday, Holman said he learned the government's subsidy program would have to be worked out before any increase would be considered.

Previously, Office of Price Administration spokesmen told the group increases in agricultural prices would not be approved by OPA until the price roll-back program was readied for operation.

The producers are asking a 25 per cent increase, claiming it is necessary to cover added operating costs and bring about needed production boosts.

"This effort of dairymen to have the milk price at the farm raised in order to increase production is not confined to any one section of the country," Holman declared. "New England is as disturbed by the situation as is the midwest. But I can't hold out any hope for immediate relief. If any rise is approved it can't be expected before 90 days."

CONTRACTOR, 36, TAKEN BY DEATH

James B. Clawson Dies After Two Months Illness.

SHELBY — James B. Clawson, 36, Tiro, contractor, died Tuesday in Memorial hospital following a two months illness.

He was a member of the Tiro school board and the Lutheran church.

Surviving are his widow, Thelma, two sons, Robert and Keith, and a daughter, Carol, all at home; his mother, Mrs. Bessie Clawson, a sister, Mrs. Richard Starrett, and a brother Paul, all of Shelby.

The body was removed to the Barkdull funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

GIRL NEAR DEATH

Suffers Skull Fracture When Thrown From Motorcycle.

WILLARD — Thrown from a motorcycle shortly after midnight on U. S. Route 224, one mile south of Willard, Beth Clark, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Haldon Clark, New Haven, was near death today at Willard Municipal hospital.

According to the attending physician, the girl suffered a fractured skull. She had not regained consciousness at noon.

Miss Clark was riding on the motorcycle with Roger Tilton, North Fairfield. According to Tilton, lights from an approaching automobile blinded him. The motorcycle left the road and turned over, throwing the girl onto the highway. Tilton suffered face lacerations and a bruised shoulder.

The two were traveling east toward New Haven.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: Hal MacIntyre, a darling of the devotees of Suave Swing, thinks that popular maestros could become more "chic" if they tried. Here's how he thinks it could be done.—D. K.)

Hal MacIntyre Says—

I'd like to trot out several theories of mine about why popular music is so often neglected by the musical intellectuals, and to suggest some remedies.

Jazz is the step-child of the arts. A writer of popular fiction is often invited to address club women's afternoon teas in Westchester and Long Island. A cartoonist or comic strip artist, if he stays at it long enough, is invariably lighted on by some longhair and described as "mirroring all the tragic-comedy of the era" in his daily strip. But jazz bandleaders, with the exception of a few deep thinkers like Paul Whiteman and Benny Goodman, never get taken up by the aesthetic crowd.

This isn't true of some individual musicians and a few small combinations. There are Eddie Condon cults and Muggsy Spanier Friday afternoon discussion groups and Coleman Hawkins debating societies, but as soon as a bandleader acquires fifteen men, a vocalist and some lucrative bookings, he becomes strictly a bum so far as the highbrow fraternity is concerned.

There are some reasonable explanations for this. Most bandleaders and side-men are quiet, commonplace chaps who don't get to literary cocktail parties and can't field references to Joyce, Proust, Verlaine, and Hemingway with any great ease. Few of us write books explaining our aesthetic theories, and practically none of us has been invited to lecture at an annual symposium on "Whither the Muses."

I deplore this, and I'd like to see the bandleading boys get into the cultural big leagues. It shouldn't be too difficult. In fact, I have a scheme which I informally describe as the Hal MacIntyre Handy Dandy Programs for Aesthetic Advancement. If the boys in Lindy's will put down their scratch sheeets for a few minutes I will pass out a few hints.

First of all, any time a band plays a hotel, vaudeville theater or one-nighter hall, there should be program notes given out to all the customers, program notes preferably translated from the French by a guy with two middle names. A typical set of notes would read something like this:

1. "Let's Get Lost." "This haunting melody, reputably based on an old Transylvanian folk tune, is introduced by the woodwinds, then followed by a lively counter melody given out by the clarinets and expressive of the growing nationalistic spirit of the peasantry and small shopkeepers. The song was originally dedicated to Henry the Hammerhead, Crown Prince of Graustark, but the dedication was torn out when Henry invaded neighboring Ruritania."

2. "Why Don't You Do Right?" "In an interesting preface to his four volume autobiography, the music critic, Von Robbins, tells us that this melody has always evoked for him an image of the sun setting over the blue waters off Aix-Les-Baines. The composer himself offers a somewhat different explanation. Writing to his friend and biographer, Jughead Gayle, he said: 'I wrote this thing to make a buck. Whaddya think?'. Brasses, fiddles and percussion execute a deft sonata-like gariband that leads to the resta coda, whatever that may be."

You get the idea, boys? The music has to be given the kind of dignified treatment a composition gets in the symphony halls.

Wage Deductions Fail to Curtail War Bond Buying

Richland county is still setting a "quota-busting" pace in bond buying in spite of the payroll deduction of income tax which went into effect on July 1, figures show, and the sales for the first seven months of 1943 have almost equaled the total sales for 1942.

The quota for July for the sale of series E bonds was $435,000 while the actual sales totaled $487,000. January is the only month during 1943 to date in which the quota was not reached. In February and June the sales equaled the quota, while in the other months the sales went over the top.

Thus far in 1943 the sale of bonds amounts to $3,187,000. The total sales for 1942 were $3,387,000. The quota for 1943 is $4,968,000.

To date $3,187,000 worth of bonds have been sold which is $501,000 more than the quota for the same period. The quota for the month of August is $405,000.

Master Sergeant Johnny Carr got home Sunday on two weeks' leave, but Jarrin' John didn't rush right out to the golf course to start pounding that pellet around, as he'd threatened so often to do the first chance he got.

"They had me on a 25-mile hike just before I left," explained John, "so now the golf can wait."

Another 5-mile hike around the golf course didn't seem to be just exactly what the doctor ordered.

Bill Keefe, the refereeing man, is still a gullible soul after all these years, He'll believe just about anything you tell him.

Bill was watching the doubles match at Maple Lake recently between the Bourns-Slabaugh and Campbell-Rakestraw teams. Slabaugh told him: "You can't stand on the sidelines eating peanuts, it's against the rules.

"How long does this match last?" asked Bill

"Best four out of seven sets," Slabaugh told him.

Keefe walked to the far end of the courts, got a bench, dragged it back to the sideline, and sat down just as the match point was played. It was a two out of three match, taken in straight sets.

Golfers who haven't gone around with Bob Young and Hugo Brannon in the foursome, are missing some of the best comedy of the links. They're continually jockeying each other, and some of the quips are rare. Better than Abbott and Costello, without taking anything away from Abbott and Costello.

But even Hugo was pulling for Young recently when Bob negotiated the first seven holes at Coolridge in one under fours, standing 27 on the eighth tee.

"Bob," says Hugo, "I hope you make these next two holes in par fours. A 35 would make a very nice card."

Young addressed the ball, bent on turning in those two pars and the 35. As usual he laid the ball flat on the ground, as he never uses wooden tees.

Slowly he went into the back swing, his eyes glued on the ball.

"Caak, caak, caak," caaked a bird in a nearby tree

"Swish, thump" went Bob's club, hitting a foot behind the ball.

"You ^zs(%nmx," yelled Young, brandishing his club.

"It was a bird," said Hugo, blandly. Young finished up with a pair of sixes for a 39.

There's still some argument about that bird.

Tourney Reaches 2nd Round

Singer Swings Out on Evanston Golf Links.

By TOMMY DEVINE

EVANSTON, Ill. — (U.P.) — Kay Byrne, slender, black-haired Rye, N. Y. girl who swings a torch song with the same smoothness she does a golf club, was in a position today to establish herself a favorite in the 43rd annual women's western amateur golf championship.

Miss Byrne meets Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., in the featured second round match and the victor will step from the jumbled field as the choice to succeed Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Texas as the champion.

Miss Byrne advanced yesterday by defeating Mrs. F. W. Zimmerman of Chicago, 6 and 5, while Miss Wall scored the most decisive triumph of the initial round by ousting Dolly Schildmiller of Cincinnati, O., 8 and 7.

The New Yorker came into the Mid-West this summer with a reputation as a fine radio and stage songster, but with her golf game a question mark. A quarter-final berth in the western open, a high finish in the All-American Women's Open and her current showing in the Western Amateur, have removed all doubt about her links ability.

Miss Byrne comes from a theatrical family and formerly was employed as a singer by a national radio network. She recently completed a short engagement at a Broadway theater.

Early in the season Miss Byrne won the New York state title in a tournament at Lake Placid. It was her first championship triumph.

Miss Byrne now is playing the best golf of her career and an assist for her vast improvement goes to the veteran Willie Goggin

"I was just an 85 shooter and satisfied with it until I began taking instructions from Goggin," Miss Byrne said. "He convinced me I could play top-flight tournament golf and worked with me until I believed it myself. I can't give him too much credit for helping me."

Goggin, one of the Nomads of the Fairways, was able to give Miss Byrne personal instruction during the recent all-American, for he was the half-way leader in the $10,000 men's division of the event and finished among the 10 leaders. The links warbler is on her own now and doing all right.

Other second round matches pit Claire Doran, Cleveland, O, against Peggy Kirk, Findlay, O.

Trotters Move To Empire City

Corn Tassel Derby Stars Volomite Sons.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Corn-Tassel Derby comes to town today for the first time in its 18-year history, and the chances are one Volomite's fancy-stepping sons will wind up as the city slicker of this wartime-transplanted Hambleton an.

In fact, it looks like a Volomite family reunion for this edition of the trotting horse world series, which the war's transportation troubles forced out of the Orange county hills upstate and dropped onto Empire city's racing strip.

Not only are the three "peoples choices" in the field of 12 Volo Song, Worthy Boy and Phonograph—all sons of the sturdy 1929 stepper who has become one of the sport's great sires, but four others of the dozen three-year old glamor boys and gals also call him "papa."

The buggy-whip wizards in the crowd of 20,000 expected to sit in on the Hambletonian gave all except the top three a fast brush-off And of the trio, Volo Song, two-year old champ of 1942, unbeaten this year and a probable 3-2 betting choice, was Mr. Big Bought for $5,000 he is figured to make it two straight for owner Bill Strang, the Brooklyn warehouseman, and to become the fourth winner 70-year old Ben White would drive. Strang and White hit the jackpot with the Ambassador a year ago and before that Ben did the steering for Rosalind in '36 and Mary Reynolds in '33.

The three mile heats get underway at 3:15 p. m. The purse is $23,263.92.

Pays Record Price For Blenheim Colt

He bid in the prize youngster during a spirited auction last night at the annual yearling sales, transferred from Saratoga Springs, N. Y., to Keeneland Park because of wartime transportation difficulties.

The price is the highest paid at an American auction in 15 years and is eclipsed only by the $75,000 handed out for New Broom in 1928 and the $70,000 that Hustle On brought in 1927.

SEGURA FAVORED IN RYE CHAMPIONSHIPS

RYE, N. Y. —(INS)— The 1943 tennis season opened officially today with the men's eastern tennis championships scheduled for this afternoon at the Westchester Country Club in Rye.

Francisco "Pancho" Segura was a strong favorite as the Ecuador champ has an unbeaten record this season and a string of five tournament wins behind him. Lieut. (jg) Joe Hunt, U.S.N., however, is expected to attract plenty of attention with his tremendous serve and smashing volleying.

Series Ducat Demand Starts

Card Fans Want To Know When Sale Opens.

By LEE BAKER

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—With a mathematical basis for their reasoning that the World Champion Cardinals are a cinch to take the National League pennant again, Red Bird fans are starting to ask when the Sportsman's park box office will begin accepting orders for World Series tickets.

The Cardinals, now concentrating on their eastern invasion, are perched atop the league with a 13-game lead. In a successful home stand which ended Sunday, Manager Billy Southworth's lads set the blistering pace of 18 wins and four losses —an average of .818—for the most successful mark they have set this season, whether at home or on the road.

Home town mathematicians don't expect the club to continue in such winning ways. The boys with the pencils say that isn't necessary. Here's the way they dope it out.

Assume that the Redbirds let the August "dog days" get the best of them and find themselves with a growing loss column during their eastern invasion. Perhaps, their present .667 standing for the season drops to an even .500 for their remaining games. The second-place Pittsburgh Pirates would be required to play 40-14 ball and set a .740 mark to even tie for the pennant.

Should the Bucs come through with such a brand of ball, considerably above their present .535, not even the most pessimistic Cardinals' fan can imagine the St. Louis club hitting such a slump.

Of course, Southworth's boys are riding a crest The team stood only three and one-half games ahead of Brooklyn when they opened their home stand in July. In 18 days at Sportsman's park they gained nine and one-half games.

But during their other eastern stands this year the Redbirds haven't caused Manager Southworth to moan or wring his hands. In fact, the team has in the records a .767 mark earned in competition in the east. To break it down, the lads have won 13 against only 13 losses.

And there is nothing to indicate a let down in the playing of the club Outfielder Stan Musial, who filled the important shoes of Enos Slaughter, continues as the league's leading hitter with a .345 average The club is leading the league in team batting and is close to the top in team fielding A fine pitching staff is enabling the club to lead both loops in low number of runs scored by opponents .363

Combine these factors with a team pep that never lets up and this eastern invasion is sure to be packed with double trouble in every barrage Trouble, that is for the Cardinals' opposition.

Come, Come, Mr. Summers! Who's Out?

Attentive audience waits, above, for words of wisdom from the lips of Umpire Bill Summers in Fenway park, Boston. Red Sox Catcher Roy Partee is demanding a decision from Summers as to whether Stan Spence or Johnny Sullivan of the Senators, both hugging third base, is out. Spence was trapped between third and home but scrambled back to third safely, only to find Sullivan perched there. Partee tagged them both and Summers ruled Sullivan out.

Splinter Pants Given Chance

Russ Peters Replaces Keltner at Third Base.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— A player who has spent most of his time plucking bench splinters from the seat of his pants becomes an important member of the Cleveland Indians infield tonight as the Tribesmen engage Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics in a twilight double-header.

The severe spike wound which Third Baseman Ken Keltner received in the right ankle in a game with the St. Louis Browns last Sunday gives bespectacled Russ Peters his first chance to play regularly since he joined the Redskins four years ago.

Until now his activities have consisted of serving as an infield replacement in hopelessly lost games, occasional pinch hitting chores, warming up pitchers and acting as bullpen coulier for Managers Oscar Vitt, Roger Peckinpaugh and Lou Boudreau.

The Tribes forgotten man has been at bat only 39 times this season and has an anemic .128 batting average.

Allie Reynolds and Al Smith are Tribal mound selections for the double bill with Ornie Arnten and Lou Ciola elbowing for the Mackmen.

INVADE FLATBUSH

BROOKLYN—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, eager to try their muscle on the cascading Brooklyn Dodgers, open a four-game series here today.

The recent rise of the Reds from fourth place to within a half-game of the second place Pittsburgh Pirates has raised the temperature of the Cincinnati fans.

Among the contributing factors to the Reds' upswing has been the splendid play of Estel Crabtree, 39-year-old veteran who hails from Nelsonville, O., whose base knocks when the Cards are down have meant the difference. At present "Crabby" is leading the Cincinnati batsmen with an average of .319.

Johnny Vander Meer is slated to pitch today, while Whitlow Wyatt, the Bald Eagle of Brooklyn, will be on the mound for the Bums

Yanks Start West Again

Disaster May Loom For League Leaders.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The New York Yankees, when they were better known as the Bronx Bombers and Murderers' row, used to sweep through the parks of their opponents as if they were at home.

But this year the American league leaders are having a lot of difficulty trying to keep from getting lost everytime they stray away from the subway circuit.

On their first western trip they dropped six out of seven games. On their next time around they lost four of their five games and might have come home in disgrace except for capturing two double-headers in two days at Chicago.

The Yanks started their last swing of the western circuit yesterday again on the wrong foot—collapsing 10-2 before the St. Louis Browns—and giving some of their rivals a faint new hope of gaining ground while the McCarthymen are away from Yankee Stadium, where they have won 36 out of 52 games this season.

The Browns made 13 hits, including three by Mark Christman, who was at shortstop because Vernon Stephens has a lame ankle and a weak bat.

The Yanks not only lost the game, but also Joe Gordon, temporarily. The star second sacker strained his back making a force play in the first inning and in the fifth retired from the game.

In yesterday's only other major league game the Chicago White Sox beat the Boston Red Sox 4-2 at night to break their third-place tie with Detroit.

Eleven games were on the schedule today, giving baseball a continuous program from morning until late at night.

Westies Win Tourney Tilt

Winebrenner Gives Two Hits, Both Homers.

Stub Winebrenner was in rare form last evening at Oberlin as he pitched Mansfield Westinghouse to a 4-2 victory over Elyria Foundry, and into the semi-finals of the district softball tournament.

Winebrenner struck out 11 batters, and allowed only two hits, but those two were home runs.

Westies took a 3-run lead in the fourth when Winebrenner doubled, Musille sacrificed, Mathias tripled, Rodehaver singled, Lockhart was safe on an error, Schaeffer strolled, and Hough flied to left bringing in Rodehaver with the third run.

Singles by Mathias, Miles and Schaeffer produced another run in the sixth. Westies return to the tournament Monday night at 9 o'clock, while Mansfield Provident Loans play in the girls' division the same evening at 8 o'clock.

Westies meet the kid all-stars in the third game of their series tomorrow evening at Liberty park.

COACHES SALEM

SALEM — (INS) — Ben Barrett today became head football coach at Salem high school after Fulton Scott, former Kent State university athlete, declined the position. Barrett accepted the position after resigning as head coach at Youngstown high school.

GAMES POSTPONED

Junior baseball games scheduled yesterday and tomorrow have been postponed.

NATIONAL AMATEUR TOURNEY PLANNED

YOUNGSTOWN —(INS)— Plans for the third successive National Amateur Baseball Federation tournament were made today at Youngstown where representative teams from 14 cities will meet from Sept. 11-19.

Proceeds from the tourney will be donated for the purchase of athletic equipment at the Shenango, Pa., army reception center. Cities which will enter amateur baseball teams include Cleveland, Dearborn, Pontiac, Detroit, Royal Oak, Ft. Wayne, Des Moines, Pittsburgh, Dayton, Baltimore, Akron, Brooklyn, New York and Atlanta.

Haegg Primed For Record

Runs Last Race In Tiptop Condition.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—If Gunder Haegg doesn't break the world mile record tonight he may never do it, for the AAU has done everything humanly possible to enable the so-called Swift Swede to get down in the vicinity of a four minute mile.

"And I think there is a very good chance that he will do it," said Dan Ferris, the head man of the AAU today as he mulled over tonight's program at Randall's Island, where Haegg will make his farewell appearance in this country.

The Swede has been getting into better and better shape all along in his races about the country and comes back to the scene of his American debut in about as good shape as any athlete that ever faced a starting gun. He is used to America, the climate and our runners and seemingly is primed for a record effort.

A crowd of some 15,000 is expected to turn out to bid him adieu and to help swell further the army air forces aid society fund which already has gone into the vicinity of $150,000.

Technically, Haegg is the greatest runner the world has ever seen, or at least the greatest America has ever seen. There is a gent in Sweden named Arne Andersson who recently broke Gunder's mile mark and he may be the best but we haven't looked at him, and track followers insist that Haegg's classic style, his swiftness and his stamina will wipe out Andersson's mark sooner or later. Gunder will have to be good enough to run a four-minute mile to hold the championship, they insist.

One certainty is that we have no runners or one at most who can make the Swede go all out. Bill Hulse may do it, but so far his fine performances have earned him nothing on running second to Haegg. The latter gets better as the race gets tougher.

Hulse's promise that he will run a 4:03 mile tonight lends attractiveness to the race. Hulse is a quiet young man who doesn't know the first thing about boasting. When he says he is going to do 4:03 he means it, and if he fails it won't be because he wasn't confident.

He undoubtedly will furnish Haegg's chief opposition, although Gil Dodds also will run from scratch with Haegg and Hulse. Rudy Simms, of New York, will get a 95-yard handicap, and Al Daily, former Manhattan college star, will have an edge, of 105 yards, im Rafferty also was to have started with a handicap but eliminated himself with a sprained knee.

Summing it all up, Haegg came over here under some suspicion. Nobody believed he could be as good as his advance notices said he was, but he has won seven straight meets and has set four American records with the result that by this time, nobody disputes his right to say even that he will try for a four minute mile.

He will be trying especially to break the 4:02.6 record set by Andersson but when you begin running down in that vicinity you are going all out toward four minutes flat and no one will be surprised if he makes it.

Haegg is in fine physical condition. He has worked himself into shape on his tour and if he should fail to make a fine showing this evening he says he will have no excuse. He is ready for the best the Americans can throw at him. And this may turn out to be a red letter day on the track calendar—a historic day.

SHOULD BE HOT TEAM

Dannie Sees Grid Revival

Says Ohio Conference Will Hold Together.

LORAIN —(AP)— Although nine members of the Ohio Athletic conference have abandoned football for the duration, Commissioner George Daniel predicted today the 19-college loop would experience a post-war sports revival exceeding that enjoyed before the world conflict started.

Ashland, Heidelberg, John Carroll, Kent State, Kenyon, Marietta, Ohio Northern, Toledo and Wittenbegg will not participate in the pigskin parade this year, and several others may drop out before the season starts.

"I believe," Commissioner Daniel said, "the Ohio Athletic conference will hold together during the war, even though playing schedules are greatly curtailed. By sticking together, and holding our regular meetings, our post-war problems will not be so perplexing. There is every indication the conference will remain solvent, and so gain prestige and strength for the years after the conflict.

"I look for a real revival of sports in our colleges, both of the intercollegiate and the intramural brands, following the war. The revival probably will put sports far ahead of the place athletics enjoyed before the conflict started."

Commissioner Daniel took a broad view of the athletic situation in his loop, declaring:

"Winning a war is a bigger and more important job than winning football games. The conference schools are giving their boys to the big job. One thing is certain, the boys going from our colleges into the armed services are in better physical shape as a result of the sport program fostered by the conference. Those boys will make good soldiers, for they were good, clean athletes.

"The ranks of the conference game officials have been thinned to a great extent by the war, too, but we'll have enough old referees and umpires left to handle the curtailed schedule in good shape. Our entire officiating schedule will have to be changed, however, and I can't make the new assignments until we find out just which schools will play this fall, and their full schedule of games."

* * *

Nothing has been done about the 1943-44 conference basketball schedules, Daniel said, but he predicted many of the schools which dropped football would get back into the athletic scrap by putting cage teams on the court.

"The necessary manpower is so much less," he said, "that this would be entirely feasible."

Next regular meetings of the conference is scheduled Dec. 3 in Columbus, Commissioner Daniel said. He hinted, however, that J. J. Smith of Muskingum college, prexy of the circuit, might call an earlier session to clear up the basketball situation.

Mansfield Juniors Defeat Galion

Giving an entire squad of 15 boys a chance to play, Mansfield junior baseball all-stars scored an 11-2 victory last evening at Galion, chasing nine runs across the platter in the third inning.

Glasscock held the Galion club to four hits, and shut them out after the first inning. The game was held to five innings by a park time limit.

Pitcher Likes Australian Version of Title Battle

SALT LAKE CITY —(AP)— Al Emmertson former Pioneer league pitcher for Idaho Falls got a big kick out of hurling his U. S. army signal corps team to the Australian baseball title, but he got just as big a kick when he read the Australian write-up of the contest.

Here is the Australian sports writer's version, as told in a clipping Mrs. A. B. Emmertson of Salt Lake City received from her son

"Starting with characteristic whirlwind tactics, Signals swept Air Corps Depot off their feet in the first two innings to defeat them 10-1 in the U. S. A. championship final baseball game at the sports for servicemen at the exhibition ground before the biggest crowd that has attended these sports gatherings.

"For the first two innings of either side, it was baseball at its best in this area. All the fine points of the game came to light in Signals' splendid teamwork The fielding was of a high order, the quick decisions in throwing the ball to the bases and all-around co-ordination overwhelmed their opponents.

"Starting in an all-around tenseness, on the part of players and spectators, Al Emmertson struck out two A. C. batsmen in the first inning for no runs. Signals then scored two runs from three hits by Cramer Fox and Gulin.

"After a clean sheet by Air Corps in their second, Signals rattled up five hits and five runs. With three men on bases a clean hit by Miller enabled them all to reach home Fox hit a double-base, Chalker scored a hit and Fox got home, and a wild throw by Bloomer enabled Emmertson to reach home.

"Emertson was Signals' key man; his pitching accounted for six strikeouts for one hit in the first two innings and up to the fourth inning he was unplayable. His bunt ball (a gentle tap), which enabled Eronemo to reach second base and to get to first himself, was an artistic piece of play. His final pitching sally was 10 strikeouts, two hits and one walk, against Jeffcoats' 6-12-2."

The scribe added, however, that Jeffcoat "exhibited that dogged

Indianapolis Goes on Warpath

(By Associated Press)

The Indians of Indianapolis are on the warpath again in the American Association pennant struggle.

After a terrific slump in which they lost 10 straight games, the Indians have bounced back to win five of their last six encounters.

Numbers four and five came last night in a double header triumph over league-leading Milwaukee. Big George Diehl shut out the Brewers on three hits in the opener to win, 3-0, while Glen Fletcher allowed six hits to take the afterpiece, 4-2.

The twin victory coupled with Columbus' 10-2 loss to St. Paul brought the Indians within a half game of the second place Redbirds and within four and a half games of the Brewers.

At Toledo, Harry Kimberlin and Fred Sanford hurled the Mudhens to a double win over Minneapolis, 2-1 and 9-3.

Louisville rallied to tie Kansas City in the ninth inning and again in the 10th, but finally lost in the 11th, 6 to 3, when Buster Blakeney homered with two on base.

EET TO PLAN SALE AT LOSS' CROP PROGRAM

WFA Officials, Experts Get Set To Extend CCC Aid on War-Needed Items.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Administration food officials called in congressional fiscal experts today to plan 1944 farm program financing and prepare for extension of the Commodity Credit corporation.

Rep. Harry B. Steagall, D., Ala., chairman, and Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott, R., Mich., ranking Republican member of the house banking and currency committee were summoned here for conferences. Administrative officials expected to participate included War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson, War Food Administrator Marvin Jones and Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown.

Present food plans, subject to CCC extension, call for support prices high enough to encourage needed production of the vital war crops such as fruits, vegetables and oil crops. On crops where support prices are higher than the OPA ceiling, the CCC would purchase at the support level and sell to processors at a price that would permit them to market at the ceiling.

Purchases and resales at a loss now are being made on California prunes and raisins, milk in six eastern cities, cheese, peanuts, canned corn, beans, peas and tomatoes. Food administration officials said a similar program on meats and the major crops would present such "enormous difficulties" as to make operation extremely difficult, if not impractical.

They said reports that the war food administration plans large scale extension of its purchase and resale program have "no foundation whatever." Food will continue to be handled through normal trade channels wherever possible, they said.

Crop prospects improved about three per cent during July, the agriculture department reported. The corn crop estimate of 2,874,711,000 bushels was 168,000,000 bushels over a month ago and indicated the second largest crop in 10 years.

The department revised its wheat production estimate upward by 44,000,000 bushels over July, forecasting an all-wheat total of 834,894,000 bushels, well above the average for the past ten years but 147,000,000 bushels below last year.

Total crop production was forecast at 5 per cent higher than any previous year except 1942. On the whole, the department said, the crop situation seems materially better than it was a month ago.

Indicated Ohio crop production, according to the department, was:

Winter wheat, 16 bushels per acre and a production of 24,816,000 bushels; corn, 42 bushels an acre and a production of 144,900,000 bushels; oats, 28 bushels an acre with a production of 35,028,000 bushels, and potatoes, 87 bushels an acre and a production of 8,526,000 bushels.

2,316 Cases Reported In U. S. In Last Seven Months.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The U. S. public health service today disclosed that a "minor" infantile paralysis epidemic has hit wartime United States with 2,316 cases reported during the first seven months of this year and increases expected to follow.

That figure more than doubles the 1,020 cases reported for the same period last year, the health service declared, and is the highest rate of incidence since 1934.

Cases of evaporated milk in storage must be turned over every 30 to 60 days to prevent the milk from turning to clabber.

SCHOOLS READY EQUIPMENT BID

Prepare To Ask For Use of NYA Machines To Expand Vocational Work.

Mansfield school officials were today preparing to bid for use of equipment in the now-closed NYA vocational training shop after meeting yesterday with state school officials.

W. L. Miller, school superintendent, and V. H. Oberlander, vocational director at Senior High school, attended the meeting in Columbus yesterday. Miller said today that the high school would be eligible for use of the same kinds of equipment now in use in classes in the vocational department and that application for use of such machinery will be made.

J. R. Strobel, state director of vocational training for war production workers, told the school authorities at the meeting that school boards which had NYA programs have priority in requesting the free use of the machinery and supplies.

There were 20 NYA training centers in operation when the agency was liquidated on July 1. Schools where these were not located will receive permission to use the equipment only if the army and navy or federal institutions do not request it.

Mansfield officials will ask for use of the equipment for the machine shop welding, and electric radio shop, Miller said.

State Patrol to Move to Route 42 Location Shortly

An announcement from the Mansfield sub-station of the State Highway Patrol said this morning that the local patrol headquarters would be moved from the present location, 309 Park avenue west, to U. S. Route 42 near the city limits, late this month.

Patrolman Earl H. Saunor, on duty this morning at headquarters said the exact date for the move had not yet been decided. The patrol will occupy the ground floor of the building formerly occupied by Coolridge grocery.

Cpl. Charles W. Cale, head of the local station, could not be reached today for a reason on why the office was being moved.

The patrol has been located on Park avenue west the past six years in a house now owned by First Presbyterian church.

DELAY HEARING ON BEER SALES

Court, Attorneys Set Aug. 18 for Juvenile Delinquency Case.

Originally scheduled for today, the hearing of Jack Theohor charged in juvenile court with contributing to the delinquency of minors has been continued until Aug. 18 by Judge Stuart H. Cramer.

James V. Will, attorney for Theohor, is serving as counsel for Dr. John Reed in the Weekley-Reed slander case now being tried in common pleas court and could not appear, Judge Stuart Cramer said.

Theohor is accused of selling beer to five boys whose ages ranged from 14 to 17. The boys were later arrested by city police for intoxication.

COUNCIL PICKS 2 DEPOSITORIES

Farmers, Mansfield Savings Banks Chosen After Week's Delay.

Two Mansfield banks, Farmers Savings and Trust company and the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank, last night were granted the city's depository funds for the next two years by city council.

Selection of the depositories had been delayed a week by council because legislation making the awards was not presented for action.

Inactive city funds, expected to total about $50,000, will be deposited with the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank at one-fourth of one per cent interest per year.

The active funds, estimated last night at $350,000, will be divided between the Mansfield Savings Trust bank and the Farmers bank on the basis of their capitalization. Banks pay no interest on active funds.

Council sold $36,250 worth of street assessment bonds to the Mansfield Sinking Fund trustees. The bonds will be issued in anticipation of the collection of property assessments for financing street improvements completed last year.

Also voted last night was an ordinance providing for the borrowing of $980 to meet the property owners' share of the cost of a sewer extension project starting at the intersection of Woodhill and Bigelow roads in Woodland.

WOUNDS SISTER WITH SHOTGUN

Boy's Newly-Acquired Weapon Accidentally Discharges; Girl's Death Feared.

ASHLAND—A shotgun he had obtained only a short time before accidentally discharged in the hands of John Coble, 16, of 127 Maple street, last night while he was taking the weapon into the house and struck his 15-year-old sister, Rosemary, in the face.

The girl was removed to Samaritan hospital. Her condition was critical this morning, and physicians gave her little chance to recover.

Acting Police Chief T. R. Brown said the youth had obtained the gun only a short time before at West Salem. It had been left to him by a grandfather who had died recently.

The boy, he said, was taking the weapon into the house when it discharged as he entered the front door. His sister was sitting across the room.

The chief said the boy's mother, and his step-father and another sister witnessed the tragedy. The boy is not being held.

CONTRACTS LET ON STREET JOB, GRAVEL SUPPLY

Mansfield Asphalt, Only Bidder on West Fifth Paving; Under Estimate.

The Mansfield Asphalt Paving company today was awarded the contract for resurfacing East Fifth street on its bid of $16,926, more than $2,000 under the estimate. There was no other bid.

Contract for furnishing gravel for city jobs went to H. W. Fleck, Mansfield, while city officials were still studying bids on the construction of an additional well at Maxwell Springs and installation of new police radio equipment.

Fleck, only bidder on the gravel contract, offered crusher run gravel at the plant at 45 cents per ton, or $1 per ton delivered to the city. Bank run gravel, a poorer grade, was quoted at 30 cents a ton at the pit and 90 cents a ton delivered. The city will use both kinds.

The Ohio Drilling company of Columbus apparently was the low bidder on the well construction. The firm's bid was $4,602.80, as compared with $5,750 for the Poe Drilling company of Massillon, and $7,390 for the Saltzgaber Drilling company, Mansfield.

F. M. Link, New York, and the Galvin Manufacturing company of Chicago submitted bids on the police radio equipment, estimated to cost approximately $4,500. The radio equipment and well-drilling contracts were to be let today.

State Guard Unit Inspection Staged At Regular Drill

Mansfield's Company F, state guard unit, underwent inspection by Lieut. Col. C. E. Rowe, Fostoria, regimental executive officer, at its regular drill last night.

At the conclusion of the inspection, Col. Rowe expressed satisfaction with the unit, according to Capt. Glen E. Bierly, commanding officer.

Several new members have enlisted in the company, Capt. Bierly revealed. Among them are Robert Russell, recently released from the army; Mike Pfister, former member of the company who rejoined it; Dale Beer, who reenlisted for a period of a year; Lawrence Chamberlain and Willis B. Jones.

The company is now at full strength, 50 men and three officers, Capt. Bierly said.

HONOR LA BELL

137 Candidates Hear Supreme Governor of Moose.

Supreme governor of all the Moose lodges, Frank LaBell was honored last night by the Mansfield lodge with a class of 137 new candidates.

LaBell spoke on fraternalism and the growth of the Moose lodge and of Moosehaven, the home for small children at Moosehaert. He also congratulated the degree team and the work which it exemplified.

The class of candidates was represented by Fred Wolff. Officers from the lodges at Mt. Vernon, Galion and Bucyrus were also present for the meeting.

If you keep your cash in the bank and pay by check then (with apologies to Shakespeare) "Who steals your purse steals trash," for your check book has no value to the purse snatcher.

We offer two checking services:

(1) The regular checking account, for the woman who wishes to maintain a substantial balance to compensate for services rendered.

(2) The ThriftiCheck account is ideal for the housewife, business or professional woman, who does not wish to maintain a fixed balance.

ThriftiCheck ADVANTAGES:

You can start an account with any amount.
No fixed balance required.
No charge for deposits.
No account numbers to remember.
Your name printed on each check.
The only cost—7½c per check—issued in books of 20.

BORROWS CYCLE

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Eight-year-old Patricia Goodwin set out for a walk. She grew slightly tired about six miles from home, noticed an idle tricycle and decided to use it for the remainder of her tour.

Late in the afternoon she arrived in Chester, 16 miles from home. Footsore and weary, Patricia rested there until her mother came for her. The tricycle only slightly worse for wear, awaits its owner.

If you ever need $25, $50, $100 or more quickly and simply, come to Household Finance. If you have a job so that you can repay in small monthly payments, you are welcome to apply for any amount up to $1000. The sooner you repay the less your loan costs. Example: A $50 loan repaid in 6 monthly instalments of $9.24 each costs $5.44—if repaid in one month the cost is only $1.50. No endorsers or guarantors are ever needed. We never make inquiries of friends or relatives.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES ON UPWARD GRADE

Adds Moderately To Tuesday Gains; New Record Set In Power Output.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks added moderately to yesterday's gains in fairly active early trading today.

Baltimore & Ohio opened ¼ higher on a 1,000 share transaction. Fractional advances were recorded by Standard Oil (N. J.), U. S. Steel, Western Union, Continental Can and International Harvester.

Holders of the Electric Utility shares were interested in the Edison Electric Institute report which disclosed power production established a new record high in the week ended Aug. 7. The output was 4,249,638,000 kilowatt hours against 4,226,705,000 in the previous week and 3,637,070,000 in the same time last year.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Grains held steady at the opening today. The government Aug. 1 crop report, issued after the close yesterday, was about in line with trade expectations.

Wheat started unchanged to ¼ lower. September $1.43⅝, December $1.45½-⅝, and rye was unchanged to ⅜ higher, September 99½-⅝.

CREWS REBEL

LONDON — (INS) — From Oslo come reliable reports that a considerable number of sub-officers and crew members from German U-boats, have arrived there and have been locked up in the military prison at Akershus.

It is declared that the cause for this has been the refusal by men on six U-boats to set out to sea.

A later report says the number of imprisoned U-boat men is about 200.

THEATERS

They're Worth It.

Betty Grable's famous legs were insured for $100,000 by 20th Century-Fox during the filming of her new picture, the technicolor musical, "Coney Island." In the film, now at the Ohio, Betty does one dance that requires her to dance up a high flight of stairs, stand at the top for a few seconds and then turn and dance down again. Though the studio took all precautions to guard the star, Betty wasn't a bit worried. George Montgomery and Cesar Romero are starred with curvaceous Betty.

Makes Debut.

Pierre Aumont, French actor and war hero, makes his debut on the American screen in MGM's "Assignment In Brittany," story of espionage and romance which comes to the Madison today. Aumont figured in many battles and won the Croix de Guerre before the Nazis overran France. He actually re-lives some of the war experiences in this story. Bill Boyd (Hopalong Cassidy) is starred in the co-attraction "Border Patrol," a western film.

Reveille With Beverly.

"Reveille With Beverly," Columbia production, continues today at the Park. The picture presents Mary Martin as the cheery-voiced director of an early morning swing program designed for the boys of the U. S. Army. Based upon the actual program which has become popular in camps all over the country, the picture shows just how the program is put on the air. Four famous bands appear. They are Count Basie, Duke Ellington, Freddie Slack and Bob Crosby. "I Escaped From the Gestapo" is the companion feature.

The Shadow Strikes.

COUNCIL DUCKS ON PAY BOOST, STIRS UPROAR

of "politics" and "pussyfooting" at councilmen.

Other council members who were questioned about the salary issue decision refused to comment today, asserting that Shultz had been designated as official council spokesman.

Fred Miller, Fifth ward councilman and chairman of the council salary committee, said "there were several ideas expressed, but the majority agreed to defer action until later."

It was reported before last night's meeting that council was considering a plan whereby the city employes in the lower income brackets would receive sizeable increases while those earning more money would get smaller raises.

Figures at the city auditor's office show that there are funds available for pay increases, although probably not at the rate of $35 a month for all city employes, firemen pointed out.

There are 206 appointive employes now on the city payroll, but only about 100 of them are paid from the general fund, Auditor Paul L. Kelley said. Salaries of the other workers come from the parking meter, street, water department, sanitary sewer, and garbage department funds.

At the rate of $35 a month for everybody, the increase would amount to more than $90,000 a year on the basis of 206 employes. That number drops off sharply in the fall and winter, however, when street and parks operations slacken, the auditor said.

Council members have pointed out repeatedly that they had to "go easy" on granting pay raises because of the large amount of money that will be needed to buy the land for the airport expansion project and get the program under way.

A fireman charged today that remittal of the second half sewer rental charge was a "political move and, if council hadn't done that, they would have enough money for their city work and the raises, too."

House Rules Committee Head Promises Early Action When Congress Returns.

Congress doesn't reconvene until Sept. 14.

Both Sabath and May joined Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., in denouncing "conflicting statements" by War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt and Selective Service Director Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey on the draft status of fathers.

"These statements tend to create confusion and unrest, and are particularly damaging in time of war," Sabath said.

In addition to stopping the drafting of fathers, Sabath and May would like to see congress legislate other restrictions on selective service.

May said he might seek to provide for discharge of fathers already inducted "to provide a source of needed industrial manpower," and that he thought congress ought to limit the size of the army because "it is big enough now."

Sabath said he strongly opposed drafting men over 30 for combat duty. He said the army's experience had shown that war training was "too rigorous" for men above that age, but that they could be used successfully for non-combatant duties.

"It takes four men behind the lines for everyone at the front," he said. "That's the place behind the lines for fathers, too, if the state of war is such that we must draft them."

BACK ON JOB

3,500 Resume Work on Ships at Lorain After 'Test Strike.'

LORAIN —(INS)— Approximately 3,500 AFL workers were to return to their jobs at the Lorain yards of the American Ship Building company today, ending a one-day "test of strength" strike.

Construction on a dozen vessels for the United States maritime commission was halted by an unauthorized walkout. The workmen, at the insistance of union officials, agreed to return to their jobs today.

John Duschak, international representatives of the Boilermakers' union and a member of a general committee representing all AFL unions holding contracts with the company, said the strikers agreed to return pending results of a labor-management meeting scheduled for this afternoon. Duschak said the company had refused to renew union contracts which expired in June.

BRITISH SIGHT ITALYS' SHORE AFTER ADVANCE

was "intensively and repeatedly bombed" yesterday.

(Four transports, two steamers, a light cruiser and a destroyer were damaged in Axis aerial attacks at Augusta, Palermo and Syracuse, the communique declared.)

Advancing American and Canadian columns converging on Randazzo, key to the Axis last ditch defense of the Messina bridgehead, found the mountain road blocked by masses of volcanic rock torn from the hills by Nazi dynamite crews while small units of machinegunners entrenched in strongpoints protected in some places by barbed wire pecked away at the attacking forces.

The fall of Randazzo appeared imminent, however, as the Germans continued to withdraw the bulk of their forces and equipment and reports placed the Allied columns within seven miles of the mountain town.

(A Reuters dispatch to London said the distance was only two miles.)

Advance patrols of the American Seventh army moving in a line almost directly east from Cesaro in the interior were reported to have made a junction with Canadian units rounding lofty Mt. Etna from a northeasterly direction.

One of the riddles of the stubborn Axis defense was solved and partly liquidated yesterday when American officers discovered that heavy artillery hammering at the American columns operating along the San Agata-Cesaro line had been brought up over an unmapped mountain road.

Randazzo itself was little more than a heap of blazing rubble as Allied bombers returned again and again to pound German artillery parks, ammunition dumps, troop concentrations and important highway junctions.

It was evident that the closing stages of the Sicilian campaign were to be the most difficult, for as the victorious Allied armies advanced the once thinly-spread Axis forces became a compact mass with a smaller and more advantageous front to defend.

Harold V. Boyle, Associated Press war correspondent in Sicily, reported the Germans were attempting to remove troops and heavy equipment from the island and had placed guns with a 20-mile range on the Italian mainland to protect the retreat across the narrow Strait of Messina.

Four more Axis vessels were sunk and another damaged in continued blastings of the Messina beaches and strait.

Air force commanders meanwhile disclosed that a total of 422 enemy planes had been destroyed in the month since the invasion began, at a cost of 181 Allied aircraft. At least 800 enemy planes were destroyed or captured on the ground, and more than 60,000 tons of enemy transport and war ships destroyed by air action.

Destroy 422 Axis Planes Over Sicily

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa — (AP) — Allied Air Forces have destroyed 422 Axis planes since the start of the Sicilian campaign, not counting those wrecked or damaged on the ground, and have lost 181, an official announcement said today.

CHICAGO PASSES 5,000,000 MARK

CHICAGO — (AP) — Mayor Edward J. Kelly, after studying ration-book registration figures estimates that the population of Chicago's metropolitan area has passed the 5,000,000 mark.

He said, in a report, that the population in the metropolitan area totaled 5,067,995, an increase of 491,149 over the 1940 census. He estimated that the metropolitan area outside of Chicago has a total population of 1,357,170.

Chicago gained only 27,470 inhabitants between the 1930 and 1940 census. Kelly's figures indicated a gain of nearly 11 times as much in less than three years.

The metropolitan area includes Chicago, all of Cook county, six townships in Lake county, three in DuPage county and all of Lake county, Ind.

W. R. Wright of the Post Engineers, protected by a gas mask, pulled her out, revived her with artificial respiration and a hypodermic shot. Blackout is doing all right as the result, and so are her four little "Dim-Outs."

BARREL BUOYS

ST. LOUIS —(INS)— The Coast Guard at St. Louis has found a new use for whisky barrels and other casks. They will be adapted to replace the all-metal buoys now guiding river boats, and thus will conserve steel and lower production costs. The first barrel buoy is now in service on the Mississippi, in fast water at Chain of Rocks, opposite North St. Louis.

ain this month last night, dropping a few bombs over East Anglia.

The air ministry disclosed RAF bombers had dropped 136,100 tons of bombs on Germany since the war began, more than half of which were unloaded since last Jan. 1. It was estimated that the Germans had droped 71,000 tons of bombs on Britain since the beginning of the war, but only 2,000 tons during 1943.

11 of Hamburg's Districts Destroyed

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (AP) —The record bombing of Hamburg by the Allies destroyed 11 of the city's 40 districts and is believed to have killed at least 50,000 persons, reports reaching Sweden said today.

The chief editor of the Hamburg Tageblatt described the bombardments as "so terrific nothing can compare with them in the world's history."

Breakdown Slows Berlin Evacuation

NEW YORK —(INS)— A breakdown in the Nazi transport machinery has held up the evacuation of Berlin the British radio said today according to CBS.

"Evacuees must prove that they will be cared for in some other part of Germany and as 80 per cent are unable to do so, chaos has resulted at the evacuation offices," the broadcast said.

"Sanitary and feeding arrangements at camps near Hamburg are described as very unsatisfactory, and there are reports of cases of typhus. The German radio last night said: 'Hundreds of thousands of people are being driven out to wander about in the country outside, looking for an asylum. Many a problem can for the time being be solved only in an imperfect way. Many of the refugees must be satisfied with inadequate accommodation.'"

Berlin Schools Being Moved Out

STOCKHOLM — (AP)— German dispatches said today Berlin's entire school system is being moved to undisclosed points in Brandenburg, East Prussia and Warthegau before the capital becomes "another Hamburg."

FOOD CENTERS OPEN TUESDAY

First To Be Started at John Simpson; 200 Apply For Canning Equipment.

Mansfield's first community canning center will go into operation next Tuesday at John Simpson junior high school while other centers will be opened soon at the Lucas, Bellville, Shelby and Woodville schools, it was announced today at civilian defense headquarters.

Making food preservation equipment available to scores of housewives who have been unable to purchase pressure cookers this year, the canning centers will be sponsored by the OCD war services.

Mansfield women who want to use the equipment may arrange a schedule by calling OCD headquarters, 1658-6. More than 200 already have indicated they will make reservations, said Mrs. John Pierce, war service chairman.

Four pressure cookers and equipment for cold packing fruit and tomatoes will be set up at John Simpson junior high school. It will be available at a charge of three cents per quart of canned goods. Mrs. Chester Cole will be in charge of the center.

The canning centers are expected to open the way for preserving a record vegetable crop this summer and a big pack of small fruits. Peaches, apples and other large fruits are scarce this season in the Mansfield area.

Standard type army ambulances cost $1,355.40 each.

resident; Howard Swank, former teacher in the Butler schools; Novella Bowman, a Butler resident; W. F. Bowman, another resident; A. J. Grubb, former member of the school board defeated in the last election, Harley Ward, Chance Mishey and Marie Baughman, all residents of Butler, took the stand.

To all of them the question, "Are you in a position to testify as to what Mr. Weekley's reputation or morals, moral conduct and chastity was on and prior to October 25, 1941?" was directed. Upon affirmative replies they were then asked, "How was his reputation at this time?" to which all replied that it was "bad."

In cross examination, these witnesses were asked if there were not both good and bad things said about the former superintendent and if the things said did not depend upon which side of the school fight the persons took. When they replied "yes" as they all did, Weekley's attorneys attempted to prove that these witnesses were opposed to Weekley in the school fight.

The defense opened its case shortly after court reconvened following the noon recess when Weekley's attorneys announced they had completed their case.

Highlights of yesterday afternoon's session were the appearances of Dr. Reed and Weekley on the stand.

Dr. Reed took the stand for the second time, this time at the call of his own attorneys and again denied—as he had when called earlier in the trial by the plaintiff's attorneys—making malicious or slanderous remarks about Weekley's health.

He admitted he had said he did not think Weekley was a good school man and urged Butler residents to vote for the three candidates who were opposed to Weekley.

The doctor also testified that he said the superintendent should have a blood test and that the results should be presented to the school board so the people would know what was wrong with him. It was brought out in the testimony that at the time Dr. Reed made this statement in the local grocery store Weekley had his hand and arm bandaged.

Under cross-examination by the plaintiff's attorneys, the elderly doctor could give no reason for not having gone directly to Weekley and asked him to have a test made, though he had previously testified to making the statement, "It would be worth $5 to me to know what's wrong with that man."

At one point in the direct examination Dr. Reed related a conversation with Mrs. Hallie Taylor, a Butler resident, in which he asked her if she had heard that the school girls were washing Weekley's hands and changing the bandages.

In cross-examination Attorney John L. Catlett asked the physician if he had ever been in the Butler school while classes were in session. Reed replied that he had not.

"Did you ever see anyone change the bandages on Mr. Weekley's hand?" Catlett pursued.

When Dr. Reed replied that he had not the attorney continued, "Did you ever see any of the school children change the bandages on Mr. Weekley's hand at the school?"

"No. I was never in the school when it was in session."

Catlett thanked the physician and declined further questioning.

Last witness called to the stand by Weekley's attorneys was the plaintiff himself.

In direct examination he testified that he came to Butler as superintendent in 1937. Then, in the summer of 1941 before school board election reports that his health was being generally discussed in Butler came to his attention, he said. When he inquired about them, he was told that Dr. Reed had been chiefly responsible, he said.

Weekley testified that he immediately had a blood test made, the results of which were negative and with this report attempted to counteract some of the talk in the village. He also said he had two other tests made, the last of these by Dr. Myron Reed, son of the Butler physician, in July 1942.

Asked about the effect the rumors concerning him had on his mental and physical health, Weekley said he couldn't eat or sleep and became very nervous.

Other witnesses called to the stand during the afternoon were Carl Littleton, Floyd Norris and Pearl Hackett.

Littleton testified that he had been a witness to a conversation between Dr. Reed and Mrs. Hallie Taylor and denied that the physician had made a statement about Weekley's having syphilis as Mrs. Taylor had testified earlier in the trial.

Norris said Weekley had offered him a "good per cent" if he would swear that Dr. Reed had told him the former superintendent had syphilis. Weekley, when questioned earlier by defense attorneys about his visit to the Norris home said he had not talked with Floyd Norris at all and had not known he was even in the house.

Mrs. Hackett refuted the testimony of one of the earlier witnesses Harry Thoms concerning a conversation with Dr. Reed.

CHURCHILL'S TRIP SEEN AS INVASION SIGN

London Stirred By Talk of Victory Over Nazis This Year.

part of her troops from the Russian front.

The possibility that Germany may be defeated this year is being discussed—even though cautiously—in all quarters, and the fact that Premier Joseph Stalin has committed large armies to his present summer offensive underscores this hope.

Indications that Britain may be the scene of major military operations are:

1. Reports that large areas of Britain's coastline will be barred to visitors in the near future.

2. Arrival in Britain of substantial reinforcements of fully-trained American and Canadian troops together with a great increase in the number of available air bases.

3. A noticeable influx of high-ranking Allied officers from other war theaters, together with a heavy increase in railway traffic throughout Great Britain.

Creation of a new military command even more comprehensive than the combined command in the Mediterranean for military tasks on the European mainland was suggested by the Times of London as a possible major objective of the Churchill-Roosevelt conference.

"The Allies have gained so much during the summer that even the widest and most far-sighted plans are in danger of being outmoded by events," the Times said.

Two Premiers Confer On War at Quebec

QUEBEC — (AP) — Within the ancient battlements of an obsolete fortress, the Prime Ministers of Britain and Canada surveyed today the heartening successes of Allied stabs at the Axis and the strategy needed to expand them into assaults designed to attain a total victory.

The conferences between Winston Churchill of Britain and W. L. MacKenzie King of Canada and their chiefs of staff were a prelude to later discussions between Churchill and Roosevelt and British-American military experts.

An official statement from Churchill's office said that "during the evening the two ministers discussed the international situation and plans for Mr. Churchill's stay" as the guest of the Dominion.

On the word of President Roosevelt in Washington Russia once more was sending no representatives to sit in either on the British-Canadian parleys here or the scheduled British American meetings.

To avoid giving the Axis any pointers on commanders in specific war theaters brought here for the war deliberations, only the names of the British chiefs of staff who always accompany Churchill to such meetings were announced.

The Prime Minister's wife and daughter, Mary, the latter a subaltern in the Auxiliary Territorial Service, also came along with Churchill in his fourth visit to North America since Britain went to war.

NEW PAPER CUT HITS PRINTERS

WPB Orders 10 Per Cent Slash In Quotas.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Commercial printers and lithographers face a new cut in supplies of print paper in the last quarter of this year, the War Production Board announced today.

The estimated reduction is 10 per cent, bringing the tonnage available to about 80 per cent of the amount used in 1942.

The announcement was coupled with a warning that it may be necessary to allocate paper to the printing industry unless additional pulp and paper are produced or stringent conservation measures are adopted by the entire printing industry.

ARMY BALLOON GETS HOMESICK

AKRON — (AP) — It was probably a spell of homesickness which brought one of the army's barrage balloons back to the General Tire and Rubber company, here.

In May, the balloon was shipped to Camp Tyson, Tenn., 500 miles south of here. Tugged at by a strong wind the other day, the big gas bag broke loose from its moorings and headed north.

In the afternoon, workers at the rubber plant saw the balloon hovering overhead. But landing conditions at the plant were not so good, so it moved on.

Shortly afterward, a Lake Erie freighter captain noticed the nomadic balloon and radioed the information to the Coast Guard, who told him to shoot it down.

Now the army balloon is on furlough in Akron undergoing repairs before it is shipped back to camp—this time to stay.

SUBS HAVE AIR CONDITIONING

WILMINGTON, Del.—(U.P.) Veterans of the first world war's submarine service will tell you they liked almost everything about their old pig boats but the bad air.

Uncle Sam has considerably cleared that picture in the modern fleet of subs now ranging the Pacific. Air conditioning units so efficient crew members even can smoke aboard — an unheard of privilege in the old days—are now on new subs.

A refrigerant called Freon-12 flourine is responsible for giving the men of the undersea fleet a new breath of life. It is non-toxic, non-explosive, and non-poisonous; is has no odor, and will not interfere with air-purifying chemicals.

By running the reverse-cycle refrigerator machinery backwards the manufacturers claim the unit will heat the craft when arctic tours of duty demand.

IDAHO SEAMAN OUT ON A LIMB

BOISE, Idaho—(U.P.)—The Idaho fish and game department announces receipt of two letters from seamen in the Southwest Pacific.

The first one read:

"Due to our handicap of being overseas, we are unable to prove a statement which has been made by one of our friends. We would like to know the length of the large cougar ever killed or captured in your state. We will deeply appreciate your assistance in this matter . . ."

The second one read:

"In answer to a letter that was sent you a few days ago concerning the length of a cougar, I wish you would do me a favor and tell them it was 16 feet long from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail. It would kind of help me out and nothing more would be said about it."

was reported 30 miles due west and a third 45 miles northwest. Another force has stormed across the upper Donets river to within 20 miles of the city on the east, while a fifth is 25 miles due east, the Russian communique declared.

The Russian advance was made in the face of stubborn German resistance.

The drive on Bryansk, another vital base for German operations in Russia, still was in its early stages. As yet there were no indications of the development of an encircling movement such as marked the capture of Orel from which the advance was launched a week ago. Nevertheless, the Red army was making rapid progress, having covered more than half the distance from Orel.

AUDIENCE COLD RIGHT IN HEART OF HOT JUNGLE

Famous Performer Gets Chilly Reception From Negroes, Then Learns Why.

By ART COHN

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA—There was a clearing in the New Guinea jungle.

Packed on one side of what is technically called a road was an army truck with about forty negroes aboard. Out of the forest, from the opposite direction, came another truck.

"This is it," said the driver, stopping head-on.

"Where's the audience," croaked a little guy who sounded like Joe E Lewis.

"This is it," sang the driver, pointed to the truck of negroes.

"Well, what are we waiting for," asked the runt who looked like Joe E. Lewis. "Austin, the orchestra . . ."

From his truck a piano replied And the little guy, who was Joe E Lewis, for 20 years one of America's favorite entertainers, went into the routine that has panicked millions

Joe was never in finer form but something was wrong. There was not a ripple of applause at his most risque songs, not the suspicion of a grin at his funniest gags. The troops just stood there in funereal silence, a silence punctuated only by the dropping of two dozen eggs, an omelette and an eggplant.

After ten minutes Lewis became desperate and grasped frantically for every sure-fire line he had ever heard

I laughed like a fool but nobody else did, especially the forty negroes. They looked at Joe as if he had started the war.

"I get more laughs at murder trials," Joe sighed, hopping back on the truck and going into his classics, "Sam, you made the pants too long"

Joe has done it more than 10,000 times and all America has howled at it, from the Copacabana to Ciro's but nothing happened that day in the New Guinea jungle Those boys didn't seem to give a hoot even if Sam had made the pants too short.

He was becoming weaker by the moment, gangrene was about to set in "My sister married a second lieutenant," he says wanly "The first one got away."

Nothing happened

As a last resort he tried his no room for the groom. That has never failed, not even at Rotary luncheons. Joe knocked himself out on that one. But nothing happened.

Not until a couple of hours later, after the show had been brought to a painful conclusion and Joe was strong enough to sit up and take nourishment did he learn why he had failed to squeeze one laugh from his small and solemn audience

The forty negroes had mumps

DR. WILD TALKS ON SOCIAL ILLS

Tells Rotary About Progress of Campaign to Curb Venereal Diseases.

Progress in combatting the spread of venereal diseases in the Mansfield area was reported by Dr. W B Wild, city-county health commissioner, in a talk at Tuesday's meeting of the Rotary club, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Physical examination of registrants under selective service was mentioned as resulting in the greatest sources of disclosing cases of sometimes unsuspected cases of syphilis and other venereal diseases ever found in the United States.

From the physician's viewpoint, it was explained, venereal diseases class with other communicable diseases and are subject to treatment and cure.

Growth of the number of cases treated at the Mansfield clinic was referred to by Dr W E Wygant, chairman of the meeting, who said that treatments have now reached 130 a week.

Spread of information regarding success of modern methods of treating these diseases was credited with inducing more persons to consult physicians or at the clinic for tests

2 MEN AND DOG HELD EQUAL TO 6-MAN PATROL

Coast Guard Uses Animals In Patroling United States Beaches.

(By Central Press)

A COAST GUARD STATION, Cal.—Fido, the monarch of the American home, is today one of its most effective and trusted defenses.

At hundreds of patrol stations like this one, both on domestic and foreign shores, "Dogs for Defense" have put teeth into that facile slogan. They also stand ready to sink their teeth into the gun arm of a stranger with a speed bred of intensive training.

Here they patrol windy beaches at night with two men, the trio functioning as a unit which officers said was the equivalent in efficiency of six men. Two men were assigned to each animal when he was accepted for service. The men have gone through eight weeks' training with the dog.

The dogs obey one-word commands instantaneously and in some cases before the man has the word completely out.

"Sit," "Down," "Watch" and "Stay" comprise each dog's working vocabulary Most of these mean just what they meant when uttered by Joe Doakes to Fido on the streets of Oshkosh, "Watch" is the exception.

At that command the dog is authorized by one of the men with him to open active defense measures against any suspicious individual approaching. The dog strains fiercely at his long leach. He does not growl. His eyes never leave the approaching figure. When it comes within the radius of his leash he lunges for the gun arm

At this point one of the few variables in the behavior of defense dogs is manifested Officers at this patrol station said one technique is a sustained mouth-stretcher The other is a rapid clicking of the tusky pincers. Both methods are equally effective, the officers said

Dobermans and sheep dogs are a strong majority at this station There is also one combination of chow and sheep dog and one French Poodle

During their off-duty daylight hours, the dogs spend most of their time sleeping and eating They are housed in kennels with separate quarters for each dog divided into inside and outside space The dogs' appearance suggests they might be being prepared for a show—their coats glisten and hardly a hair is out of place.

Off duty, the dogs set up an immediate chorus of barks at the approach of a stranger.

Owners of dogs accepted for service are told at what school their dog is being trained Once the dog is assigned to duty, however, his owner does not know where he is Release of this information would result in a constant stream of visitors, whose mutterings of sweet nothings might inure the dogs to civilians or strangers, thereby jeopardizing the effectiveness of their training, officers said.

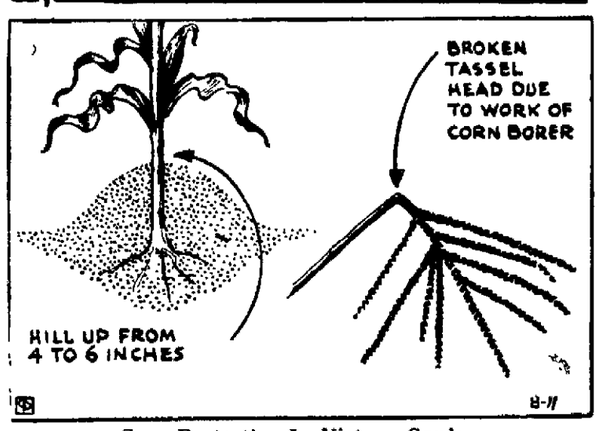
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Corn Protection In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(By Central Press)

Dwarf varieties of corn, if planted deeply enough, need not be "hilled up," but taller growing corn should be supported against wind damage by being "hilled" The hilling of corn also serves as a mulch and helps to retain moisture in the soil

A corn stalk that has been "hilled" is shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Pile the dirt up four to six inches on both sides of the row. On the late, tall-growing varieties, the dirt can be piled up as high as eight inches

The hilling of corn can be accomplished by plowing along each side of the row with a wheel cultivator, or it can be done by means of a hand hoe

Keep your eyes open now for evidence of the European corn borer among your cherished sweet corn. Infested plants can be detected by broken or detached tassels, as illustrated and the presence of holes with protuding "borings" in the sides of the stalks

It is claimed that 80 per cent control of the borer can be obtained by spraying or dusting with rotenone just as the green tassel is first visible. Repeat four times at five-day intervals.

'TIMID' WOMAN STEALS A PURSE

SEATTLE—(INS)—Two women sat on a depot bench, cautiously guarding their belongings.

The first launched into an extended harangue on the danger of pick-pockets, and suggested the two take turns standing guard over their property so they could catch a few winks of sleep.

The next morning the latter, Miss Marion Wuff of Chicago, reported $12 was stolen from her purse.

The first woman had departed, leaving only a book behind.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 11, 1943.

Pleasantest word in the August vocabulary is "cooler."

History repeats, and last week's question, "Where is Mussolini?," now becomes, "Where is Hitler?"

Robert Quillen thinks it isn't surprising that so many people are out after easy money. "War can't overcome 10 years training," he says.

Some of those eastern motorists suspected of "pleasure driving" immediately produced a doctor's prescription—which opens the new field of "gasoline for medicinal purposes only."

Another Roosevelt-Churchill Meeting

RETURN of British Prime Minister Winston Churchill to North America within three months after his departure from Washington in May is taken to mean that fast-moving events in Europe have made it advisable to readjust Allied war strategy to meet new conditions, and—possibly—to go further in post-war planning for readjustments based on agreements to be reached between Great Britain, the United States and Russia.

This will be the sixth of the Roosevelt-Churchill war conferences, of which three have been held in Washington, and each gave later evidence of Allied action along lines decided upon at these meetings.

Offensive action in the Mediterranean came quickly after the May conference and with the Sicilian campaign nearing conclusion, Mussolini ousted and Italy tottering, the time is doubtless deemed ripe for preparation to intensify offensive warfare against Germany itself.

While Russian and Chinese agreement with British-American policies is assumed, it may be regretted that these nations cannot be brought into closer contact with Roosevelt-Churchill conferences, so that views of leaders in all four of these great anti-Axis powers can become a part of the discussion of war policies and post-war purposes.

It sometimes seems that Marshal Josef Stalin has studiously avoided participation in what are termed British-American conferences, causing many people to wonder whether the understanding with Russia, as to post-war aims in Europe is as clear as is desirable, and also whether Russia's intention is to carry the war against Germany further than to clear its own country of invaders.

The only expressions that have thus far come out of Russia have indicated dissatisfaction over the extent of British-American efforts to reduce Axis pressure against the Soviet armies and it seems important that this feeling be overcome before European post-war planning has reached a serious stage.

Many Factors Will Contribute

BACK FROM a three-weeks jaunt to England and North Africa, Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, expresses belief that "Germany cannot be defeated solely by aerial bombardment, but that her armies must be thoroughly beaten on land."

Just how even such a capable observer as Mr. Davis was better able to reach this conclusion after he visited England and North Africa than he would have been had he remained in Washington is not explained.

The battering which Germany is being given from the air is only a part of the Allied offensive and the successful land fighting in North Africa, Sicily and Russia shows clearly that a combination of factors is already being directed against the European Axis powers.

Air warfare has thus far been for the purpose of cutting down Germany's war production and transportation facilities, and to whatever extent this is successful, opposition will be reduced when the time comes for invasion of the continent.

Occupation of Italy, either by force or surrender, continues to loom as the most likely invasion move, and this will probably bring a test of land and air fighting strength between Allies and Axis in northern Italy.

As seen by Louis F. Keemle, United Press war analyst, "Once Allied air bases are established in northern Italy the effectiveness of the air war will be nearly doubled."

It is noted that Mr. Davis declined to "venture a guess" as to when the war will end. This seems wise as, so far as can be learned, the actual date is more dependent on how long it takes to do what is yet to be done than on what has already been done.

Some Motorists Speeding Again

SPORADIC enforcement of the law against speeding on Mansfield streets seems rather unfair to motorists who happen to be caught on "enforcement days" and to extend an undeserved privilege to those who drive at excessive speed on the days or nights that no attention is being paid to this offense.

While it is impossible for traffic officers to observe all violations of the 35-mile speed limit on Mansfield streets (25-mile limit on streets not a part of state or federal highway), frequency of this offense appears to offer opportunity for daily arrests until the habit has been more generally discouraged than it now is.

It might seem that informed motorists would willingly keep speed within the 35-mile limit at all times, to conserve gasoline and tires—but it appears that some have not yet become informed on this subject.

Passing of Two Great Runners

WITHIN a few days of each other, two once-famous runners died, one by airplane crash in Alaska, the other peacefully in his home at the age of 80.

Captain Charles Paddock of the Marines was in the '20's called "the fastest human." He established 94 records, and was known to sport followers everywhere. Recently, before joining the Marines, he had been business manager of two California newspapers.

Wendell Baker, in the '80's, was the American champion sprinter. How far the world has come since his day is shown by the fact that his best record was 22 seconds for the 220-yard dash, and he won the intercollegiate quarter mile run in 54 2-5 seconds. The record for the 220 is now 20.6 seconds, made by Jesse Owens in 1935. Ben Eastman's 440-yard mark of 46.4 seconds has not been beaten since 1932.

In his day Baker was as well known as Paddock. The records of both have since yielded to faster racers. But if they had possessed the advantages of present-day training, tracks and diet, either might well have equalled the fastest runner of today.

Savagery of Jap Soldiers Shows Domination of Barbaric Instincts

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

A WEST COAST READER has written to reprove me, courteously and in sorrow rather than in anger, for referring to the Japanese as "barbarians" and "savages."

He says (1) that these terms are unsuitable, and (2) that they are unworthy of this columnist. Having lived among the Japs for 43 years, he has found them cultured, courteous and democratic. They will return to democracy when they get out from under the military dictators who now hold them down.

Well, I hasten to admit that it isn't good form to toss opprobrium about loosely. Obviously, too, 73,000,000 Japanese can't all be bad. Further, a news analyst isn't permitted to have any emotions when he is writing.

I still feel, however, that the vast majority of the Japanese are savages at heart. It's easy enough to teach a savage to use a knife and fork, but that doesn't change his instincts.

I have before me a dispatch from J. Norman Lodge, Associated Press war correspondent with United States troops on New Georgia island out in the Pacific. He records a report made by Lieut. Nicholas T. Kliebert about the manner in which Jap soldiers bayoneted helpless wounded Yankee soldiers to death. In one instance five of the savages (?) propped a wounded man against a tree and took turns bayoneting him.

"They cut one of the poor lads from the top of his head to his feet," says the lieutenant, "meanwhile laughing deliriously. Then they shot him through the head."

On March 10, 1942, the British government indicted Japan for barbarities at Hongkong paralleling those during the sacking of Nanking in 1937. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons that the Japanese forces occupying Hongkong committed such horrors as the bayoneting of fifty helpless, bound officers and soldiers, and the indiscriminate raping and murder of Asiatic and European women.

OF COURSE, one instance of that sort, or ten, shouldn't condemn an entire nation. But that's the pattern of the whole Nipponese fabric. It may be said that the Jap soldiers are merely carrying out orders, for the purpose of terrifying enemy people. That's not good enough, however, for no civilized soldier would execute an order of that sort.

One of the outstanding characteristics of the savage is that he strikes by stealth. The Japs struck at Pearl Harbor while two of their emissaries talked peace in Washington.

From Emperor Hirohito, who places his seal of approval on such acts, down to the soldier who rapes the woman and then bayonets her, the Japanese have savage instincts, despite their veneer of civilization. I'm one of those who believe that human nature can be changed. On that basis the nature of the Nipponese can be changed—in the course of generations.

Meantime it's vital that we recognize what sort of people we are up against. We have a bitter job to do, and that is to render them so utterly impotent in the military sense that they won't in a hundred years be able to arm themselves again to commit aggression.

And when this war is over we shall have fought in vain if such criminals as Hirohito and Tojo and Hitler and Mussolini — and their captains—aren't brought to book for their sins. We said this during the last war, too. There was a lot of talk about punishment of war guilt — hanging the Kaiser, and that sort of thing—but in the end nobody had the guts to do anything about it.

Even now some say that terrific international scandals will be exposed if the big war criminals are placed on trial. Others claim that such trials will establish precedents which might be turned against one of the Allied Nations if it happened to be defeated in a subsequent war.

Still, the Allied chiefs have promised that the guilty shall suffer after this war, and all the signs are that they intend to carry this out.

Dave Boone Says:

ALL THESE reports of Hitler being henched for losing his batting form may be true but you can't tell me he would go out that quietly. He'd set up a howl that would be global if you ask me.

Anyhow, what kind of a switch would it be that would take Adolf out and leave Goering? Goering is Hitler in technicolor and with extra chins.

Germany couldn't fool anybody that way. Goering, Himmler, Goebbels and all that gang will have to be benched before there will be any difference even through dark glasses.

Still the German military chiefs can always be counted on for stupidity in the pinches and they might possibly think they could get somewhere by changing the wax figures in their chamber of horrors.

Say, if you ever get the idea you've done something big in your life just think of the boys who raised the Normandie. The fellows who did that job weren't the "gimme something easy, I don't want to strain myself" type.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

WELL this business about submitting a letter of resignation with your squawk is beginning to spread.

Only today I have a note from my wife which says "I understand you told a neighbor that you have eaten better pies than I bake. Kindly submit your resignation as my husband."

And one of my kids wrote his teacher and said "before the school season opens, I want to warn you that if you make any squawks to my parents about my conduct, I expect you to submit your resignation at the same time."

* * *

Mr. Roosevelt certainly didn't intend that when he told his executive department people to submit their resignations any time they went to the newspapers instead of to him with a squawk.

Currently the order has been called to the attention of a New Jersey board which balked at drafting fathers and made no bones about its opinion of Paul McNutt's proposal.

And Prentiss Brown has underlined it for his OPA people to read and be guided accordingly.

* * *

If this thing keeps on people will be showing up at newspaper offices with a hot yarn in one hand and a "situation wanted" advertisement in the other.

Thought for the day: No squawking in the lobbies please.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

After Harvest

THE DOTTED wheat and oats fields of two weeks ago are bereft of shocks. The even yellow stubble is lost beneath a new growth of clover. Early meadows, mowed in June, have set a second crop that stands as thick as the first one did. In another week, perhaps the rolling hills will be in clover bloom again.

There are no fields or neglected places that are not green this summer. Even beneath the yellow poverty grass that flaunts on the valley's rim, no drabness is visible. I watch the ruby-throated humming bird and the long tongued moth seek their meal of nectar from the touch-me-nots at nearly dusk.

Brooks flow through pastures gladdened by frequent summer rains. Tall sedges wave in the gentle breeze. Strong canes of goldenrod stand by all roadside ditches, the long heady branches already ribbed with tiny buds, where gold shines through its threadlike fringes. Glossy sumac wears its brilliant rust-red blooms. Occasional vivid splashes of red are on the gum trees. Purple tints and inklings of red and golden accent many quiet woodland nooks. The woods is waiting.

Cornfields are beautiful and green, with dark silk on the blossom end of many massive ears that bend down from their own weight. Ants and butterflies enjoy the fresh cob sweetness. At early morning, or after dusk, the greenish fragrance of growing corn is almost tangible. The wonder and thrill of it can be felt for hundreds of yards around. The rustling leaves breathe forth a melody—at morning, wet with dew, they shimmer and shine and bend.

I sat today beneath our giant maples and watched long lines of swallows on the wires beyond the road. They congregate in scores and hundreds, without a sound—just wheeling and swooping in perfect formation for the fun of it.

Tall thunder heads above the southern hills caught the last rays of sunset upon their turrets, and burst into a vivid color picture. Little zigzag lines of lightning played about the nearer moving mass. The gorgeous colors changed each fraction of a second.

I stood and knew myself to be a tiny figure in a living mural. Technicolor cannot make a fairy scene into which a humble farmer may fit as well.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Distillers Ignore Grain Shortage Battle to Resume Making Whisky

WASHINGTON—It looks as if the whisky distillers never learn. For more than a week they have been closeted with the War Production Board trying to put over a deal whereby they will be permitted to resume manufacture of whisky on a limited scale—even at a time when the nation is so desperately hard up for feed grain that it is feeding wheat to cattle instead of humans.

To start the distilling of whisky would mean a further use of grain, thus depleting the supply for cattle, hogs and chickens.

Despite this, the whisky distillers have been waving the constitution, roaring about involuntary wartime prohibition and arguing that there are ample stocks of war alcohol on hand.

The latter, of course, is true. Alcohol stocks are ample and the manufacture of explosives has been curtailed. However, two counter-factors have been pointed out by WPB officials. One is the discovery of several new uses for alcohol. One of these is an important war use, so far a carefully guarded secret, which may require more alcohol.

But even more important, WPB officials point out, is that the country is desperately hard up for grain. Seldom in history has wheat been fed to animals instead of people. And should there be a drought next year and the wheat crop injured, then with reserves depleted, the whisky distillers would get the blame.

More than 10 million bushels of grain per day are required for feeding livestock and poultry. Where we are going to get it during the coming year, already has the War Food Administration baffled. The estimated 1943-44 supply of grain is 12 per cent less than last year's and simultaneously livestock on farms will be five to ten per cent greater.

The agriculture department has already warned livestock producers to conserve feed. Yet at the same time, the distillers have been lobbying their ears off to divert grain to whisky.

Littell Goes to Dinner.

NORMAN LITTELL, the young assistant attorney general who forced Secretary Knox to cough up the amazing Elk Hills oil deal, has an amazing memory for the law, but when it comes to his own clothes it is another matter.

The other night he was invited to dine with Swiss Minister Charles Bruggmann, brother-in-law of Vice President Wallace, and according to Mrs. Littell, his concentration on Elk Hills rather than clothes almost caused a row in the Littell family.

To save time and gasoline, Littell dresses for dinner at his office, but this time he phoned his wife at the last minute that he had forgotten to bring his collar and cummerbund. He asked her to meet him outside the door of the Swiss legation with these articles very essential to dining out in summertime Washington.

Mrs. Littell dutifully obeyed. Arriving on time she stood hopefully outside the Swiss legation holding a man's collar in one hand and a black cummerbund in the other. Presently the guests began to arrive.

"Where's Norman?" asked Assistant Secretary of War McCloy as he noticed Mrs. Littell standing expectantly in front of the legation.

"I'm waiting to finish dressing him," replied his patient wife.

Next came William Batt, vice president of the War Production Board, and Mrs. Batt. "Aren't you coming in?" they asked.

"No, I'm looking for a man without a collar, a necktie or a cummerbund," replied Mrs. Littell.

Next arrived Vice President and Mrs. Wallace.

"Why don't you let me stay out here and help dress Norman," Mr. Wallace suggested, after taking in the situation. "You go on in and I'll wait for him."

But Mrs. Littell thought her husband would be a bit embarrassed at having the vice president of the United States act as his valet.

A moment later Littell arrived, slipped on his collar, necktie and cummerbund, and went down the receiving line. Each lady—Mrs. Bruggmann, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. McCloy, Mrs. Batt—greeted him with:

"Well, Mr. Littell, I see you have your collar and cummerbund."

"Why," whispered Mr. Littell to his wife, "did you have to tell them all about it?"

Fourth Term.

CLOSE friends who have talked with the president lately are not at all sure he wants to run for a fourth term. Naturally, he is not telling even his closest intimates what his real hopes are, any more than he told anyone prior to the third term convention in 1940.

But one or two hints that he has dropped lead friends to believe that the president emphatically would not run again if the war is won, and would run only reluctantly if the war is still in progress.

However, there is one ambition he deeply cherishes, namely to help write a permanent peace. Having taken an active part in the last war as assistant secretary of the navy and having seen the "war to end wars" turn into an abortive and stymied peace, the president wants more than anything else not to repeat Woodrow Wilson's failure.

Therefore it is not beyond the realm of possibility that to bring about a non-partisan peace treaty, Roosevelt would be willing to make an agreement with a broad-gauged Republican who supports his foreign policy, whereby that Republican would get the nod, for the White House, if FDR in turn sat at the head of the peace conference.

All this, of course, is still in the realm of speculation, but also within the realm of possibility.

Should this not materialize and should the president definitely decide not to run, then the chances are strong that he would throw the nomination to his close friend and "Assistant President," ex-Justice Jimmy Byrnes.

The president has felt that the country may be entering a period when the tide has set in against New Deal reforms and that a man like Byrnes, capable of holding different elements together, is what the Democratic party will need for the next few years.

ERNIE PYLE

Roving Reporter

Ernie Has Touch of "Battlefield Fever" And Tells About It In This Article.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—Since Sicily was a new country for me I figured I might as well get sick right away and get it over with. So on my fifth day ashore they threw me into an ambulance and off we went hunting for a hospital.

We were looking for a certain clearing station, and we couldn't find it because it was moving forward while we were moving back, and we passed on different roads. The result was that the determined ambulance boys drove nearly halfway across Sicily before they finally gave up and started back. We drove a total of 75 agonizing miles over dusty gravel roads, and then found the hospital all set up ready for business within four miles of where we had started from in the first place.

THE clearing station was a small tent hospital, a sort of flag stop for wounded on the way back from the lines. The first regular hospital was about 15 miles on back.

The average patient stays in the clearing station only a few hours at most. But once the doctors got a squint at me they beamed, rubbed their rubber gloves, and cried out: "Ah, Here is the medical freak we have been waiting for. We'll just keep this guy and play with him a while."

So they put me to bed on a cot, gave me paregoric and bismuth, aspirin and codine, soup and tomato juice, and finally wound up with morphine and a handful of sulfaguanadine. The only thing I can say on behalf of my treatment is that I am well and hearty again.

My family physician in this case was Capt. Joe Doran, of Iowa City, Ia. Captain Doran is a young and enthusiastic doctor who is different from most front-line doctors in that his main interest lies in treating sick soldiers rather than wounded ones.

Captain Doran likes to get at the seat of a man's ills. In furtherance of this he has a nice little laboratory set up in one of the tents, complete with microscope and glass tubes. He is always taking specimens from his patients and then peering at them like Dr. Arrowsmith.

Captain Doran's germ-quest upon me was somewhat agitated by the fact that upon the evening of my arrival he received a letter saying he had become a father for the second time, about six weeks previously. He was so overjoyed he gave me an extra shot of morphine and I was asleep before I could say "Congratulations!"

They kept me in what is known as a semi-comatose condition for about 24 hours, and then began to get puzzled. At first they thought I had dysentery, but the little laboratory showed no dysentery. Then they thought I had malaria, so they called in a couple of Italian malaria experts from down the highway. They chatted in English, punched my finger, took blood specimens, and reported back later I had no malaria.

By that time I was getting better anyhow, so they decided that what I had was a nonconforming and just now fairly common illness which they call "battlefield fever." With this you ache all over and have a very high temperature. The doctors say it is caused by a combination of too much dust, bad eating, not enough sleep, exhaustion, and the unconscious nerve tension that comes to everybody in a front-line area. You don't die of battlefield fever, but you think you're going to.

THEY put me in a corner of a tent, and in this corner at various times were three officers with similar fevers. Their illnesses were brief, like mine, and they all left before I did, so their families needn't worry upon reading that they were ill.

One of my classmates was a redheaded and bespectacled lieutenant named Rahe Chamberlin, from Clarksville, O. Since coming into the army Chamberlin has bought a half interest in a grocery store back home. Whenever they would bring us fruit juice in cans he would take a good gander to see if it was a product his partner was selling back home.

Another fellow-sufferer was Lieut. Richard Van Syckle, of Sewaren, N. Y. He used to be in the automobile business at Perth Amboy. He is married to Clare Raferty, a delicious former Powers model, and he carries magazine-cover pictures of her in his map case.

The third was Maj. Elizey Brown of Okmulgee, Okla. Major Brown used to be president and general sales manager of the Cleveland Tractor company. He is a tough outdoors man, and he was so thoroughly disgusted at getting sick that it made him even sicker. He celebrated his 44th birthday just before entering the hospital.

Major Brown distinguished himself in our midst by paying a flat hundred dollars to the station's chaplain for a $14 air mattress. His own gear was all lost in the original Sicily landings and, as he says, money means nothing over here anyhow so why not pay a hundred dollars for something that will help a little?

HOUR OF GRACE + + +

CHAPTER XXIII

Meegan and her mother were at breakfast when Toby came down the following morning. It was a hot August morning when the sun seemed to penetrate every dark corner and to blister even the water of the bay. But from the dining room windows that looked mainly upon the hilly woodland Meegan had seen the year's first yellow leaves. She was looking out the window, her eyes seeming to see at a great distance, her throat rising brown but too thin from the cotton sports dress when Toby came down and took his place at the table.

Instantly Elinor McLean brightened. One of the many charming things about her mother, Meegan had often thought, was her appearance in the morning. She looked so clean and neat in a voile dress with her white oxfords as white as ever shoes can be and with her hair falling into its long accustomed wave and with a sweet fragrance about her that was closely associated with her in Meegan's mind as the fact that she was her mother.

"Good morning, dear," Elinor McLean said. "Will you have cereal or an egg?"

Toby asked teasingly, "Can't I have both?"

"Of course, dear. But you never want very much for breakfast."

"I'll have both. What I have wanted and what I want now are two different things. Who wishes the privilege of fixing my breakfast?"

Meegan said, "I'll do it, Toby. I've finished and Mother hasn't."

"But you've eaten scarcely nothing, dear. You'll never gain any weight that way."

"Don't say that," Toby said. "She looks just right to me. Meegan's weight is all in the right places."

Elinor McLean tilted her tidy head and laughed. "He's flattering you, darling, because he likes the way you poach eggs. They never hold together for me. I ask my friends how they cook various things and I do exactly what they tell me but mine never turn out right. You must have to have a knack for it. With flowers it's different. I've always been successful with flowers."

Meegan went to the kitchen hearing through the closed door Toby's good humored voice followed by her mother's laughter. Nothing in the world was as fine to Elinor McLean as to have her son tease her about her bridge and her cooking. Nothing began a day so well for her as to begin it with Toby in good spirits, a hungry Toby demanding food. She might hear bad news of her friends later in the day or get poor hands at bridge or ruin the roast but if she had begun her day with a happy, hungry Toby, then nothing could dim her brightness. And nothing could give her the lost hurt look of a child being punished for a crime it has not committed than for Toby to be silent or sharp and wish for nothing to eat.

Later when Toby was eating she looked at him and her mother and the flowers in the silver bowl in the center of the table and at the room that had a genteel shabbiness. And she wished she could stop thinking of Sue and wondering where she was this morning and how her children felt to awaken far from the island and the water and sand they loved to play in . . . She wished she could stop thinking of Adele and her chilling, gory stories and Van awakening alone in the perfect house and Erica awakening in a house she would soon leave . . . And Clare and Fayne awakening in their lovely house on which there was a curious stigma that had never been on it when Mary Ann and Herman had lived there and it had been a hospitable and charming home . . . She wished she could stop thinking that usually unpredictable things precipitated Toby's good humor, his appetite and his coming down in time to have breakfast with his mother and her.

Didn't it occur to her mother that Toby was happy, hungry and on time when he was about to ask for money or carry out a new scheme or announce an already planned trip? Her hands, picking up the second cup of coffee, were a little tremulous . . . Toby would finish his breakfast, declare it excellent, light a cigaret . . . and tell them. Thus it had always been. She waited, wondering and anxious, curbing her imagination. It would not shock her. This morning she felt as if wrung out and incapable of shock. She thought, it might be pleasant but we've all become such unpleasant, suspicious people this summer I don't dare hope for good news.

She held her breath when Toby lighted a cigaret. He looked at her then, his eyes quickening and then he looked at his mother and cleared his throat.

"I have some news . . . I—I don't quite know how to begin."

"Oh Toby, don't tell me you're in trouble?"

"Trouble? Who said anything about trouble?" He leaned forward and put his hand over the hand of his mother. Reassured, her face was bright again. "No, I'm not in any trouble though, of course, some people would call it that. You knew that sooner or later I'd leave you, didn't you?"

"Leave me?" She was pale again. Where are you going?"

He sat back in his chair and looked at her. "Well, I'm going to two places. First I'm going to a church to get married and then I'm going to a new job in a defense plant."

"Married? But, Toby, you . . ."

"Oh, but I did bring her to meet you. Erica Lester? Remember? Erica and I decided last night to be married. Now, please, please, for God's sake, don't cry."

"Why, I—I'm not crying, darling. But she was. Her eyes were filling. "Why, I thought you were going to tell me something dreadful. I thought you meant you were going away, far away . . ."

"Meegan liked her. You will, too. She's a wonderful girl."

Meegan lowered her head. Her own eyes were filling. Thank God, she thought. Thank God. She lifted her head and smiled at him. "I do like her, Toby, and I'm so glad, so very glad."

"But who is she, darling?" their mother asked in a high voice.

Toby smiled. He glanced at Meegan again before he turned to his mother. "She didn't 'come out' in this or any other season. She went to a public school and then she got a job. She was a working girl until her brother made a pot of money on an invention."

"Oh! An inventor!"

Meegan knew that that would be the first thing her mother would tell her friends about Toby's fiancee. Also she knew that in her mother's mind Roy looked exactly like Thomas Edison. . . .

Toby smiled. Then he said, "She's of Scotch ancestry, her parents are dead and she's everything I'm not and I'm everything she isn't. We're going to put two together on a marriage hook-up. Then, I repeat, I'm going to get a job in the defense plant where her brother works."

"I knew, I just knew you would do something splendid like that, dear."

"Splendid? I don't know how splendid it is. It's normal to be married and to go to work. It's because I've been abnormal that you think it's splendid. Incidentally, I think you are splendid for taking it like this and not crying all over me. I couldn't stand that and that's what I expected."

"And you're happy, darling, really happy?"

He looked at her, a long sober look. "Sure I'm happy. I proposed to her. She didn't propose to me."

"It's so romantic and nothing romantic has happened to us for such a long time. A wedding in the family . . . Isn't it wonderful, Meegan?"

"Yes, it is wonderful, Mother."

"I won't cry, Toby. You'll be leaving us, of course, but we'll be in the same city together. Have you talked about the wedding? I simply adore weddings, you know. Will it be elaborate or..."

"No. A small affair. We didn't talk about it much but we did decide on that. No big splurge."

"And the date?" Meegan asked.

"I wanted it to be at once but she said she needed a little time. For new clothes, I suppose. So we decided on the last Saturday in August. Saturday morning here at the island church."

"Oh, splendid!" his mother said. "I've always wanted you and Meegan to be married at the island church."

Sailor In Distress Must Sign WAVES Or Eat His Hat

A sailor in Cleveland is not content with having "a girl in every port," he is hopeful of getting three or four girls in each of 27 towns in northeastern Ohio.

And he's plenty worried, too, for he has the job of recruiting 100 WAVES—girls serving in the women's naval reserve—by Sept. 1 or eating his sailor cap in the presence of his commanding officer, should he fail.

How did this situation arise between the sailor, Richard C. Sheets, petty officer, first class, and his boss, Lieutenant Commander Ralph H. Domley, head of the Navy Recruiting station in Cleveland?

Well, one night recently, as is the custom at the navy recruiting station, the sailors got together after regular hours to discuss the war, the latest rumors dealing with transfers and promotions. When the talk turned to women in military service it was agreed that it really was a job trying to get women to don uniforms.

Sheets disagreed. He contended there was no problem if one went about it in the right way. Then he made his now-famous remark: "Why, I'd eat my hat if I couldn't get a hundred WAVES in a month!"

Standing inconspicuously near by was Lieutenant Commander Dombey, who overheard the remark and came back with: "I'll take you up on that. Let's see you do it!"

So there you are, girls, you can really help a sailor in distress. Petty Officer Sheets will be in Loudonville Aug. 19 and Plymouth Aug. 20, to help with the WAVE recruiting drive here, according to Harry Houck, specialist first class recruiter, in charge of the navy recruiting office in this area.

Planes, Ships And Heroes High In Youths' Reading

ST. LOUIS —(U.P.)— War-minded youngsters still are reading cowboy stories and juvenile mysteries, but their top choice now is books about model airplanes and submarines, nursing and war heroes.

Even first-graders are passing up Mother Goose for Pratt's "Fighting Ships of the U. S. Navy," librarians say, and they frequently demand that clerks step in to settle arguments about the battle qualities of certain types. The mites carefully study each picture, from aircraft carriers to mine sweepers with an intensity that would surprise an Annapolis midshipman.

Girls are reading about nursing and other wartime occupations along with their Nancy Drew stories, but they're right in with the boys when it comes to biographies and histories of American heroes. Boys in all age groups are asking for more scientific and technical books and frequently copy model planes, ships and submarines from the illustrations.

Books such as "Goethals and the Panama Canal" and "Soldier Doctor, The Story of William Gorgas" are prime favorites, librarians report, plus a heavy demand for career stories. The latter, librarians suggest, are popular because the older children are showing an increasing interest in postwar planning and they want to know more about leaders who will play vital parts in the peace councils.

POST-WAR PLANNING SESSION CALLED HERE

President of League of Women Voters Will Meet Tomorrow at Presbyterian Church With Representatives of Churches.

WITH the purpose of working out a defense plan that serves the needs of the community now, and yet may be carried over into a post-emergency period, Mrs. D. O. Meese, president of the Richland county chapter, League of Women Voters, has called a meeting of squad leaders from many church groups in the city for tomorrow.

The group will convene at 2 p. m. Thursday in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church, to function as squad leaders in discussion groups in women's church organizations for the coming several months. They will use as a basis for such discussions the national league material on Post-War Plans. The objectives coincide exactly with those declared by the Federated Council of Churches of America.

How the United States can get a foreign policy that will insure us against attack and promote our national well-being is the issue presented by the National League of Women Voters in its latest broadside, "Prelude to Postwar Planning," one of the tools with which League members in 1500 communities throughout the country are armed as they start on a midsummer campaign to recruit an array of at least three million fact-informed men and women.

Scoring our negative foreign policy during the last 20 years, the League points out that such "keep out of war" and "mind your own business" policies neither guaranteed our security nor promoted our national interests, the two principles upon which a positive foreign policy should be based.

"It is necessary to take stock of the position of the United States in a changed world, "the broadside states, "and to decide what we have to do to protect our vital interests. For instance our place in commercial aviation will have a bearing on our ability to defend ourselves; so will our rights to naval and air bases. We need access to raw materials and outlets for trade to assure our prosperity."

Four alternative methods are posed by the League by which the United States can try to secure its future: (1) go all out for armaments in order to protect ourselves, unaided, in both oceans, (2) join in a balance of power arrangement outside of an international organization, (3) join with other nations in an international organization, (4) use a combination of policies.

If the American people choose this time to join an association of nations, the League of Women Voters offers four facts that will influence the form of such an association: (1) no organization can succeed without the cooperation of the three nations who control the military power—Russia, Great Britain and the United States, and of China whose power is potentially great, (2) chances are slight that in the immediate future nations will disarm or transfer their sovereign rights to a super-government, (3) other peoples must be satisfied, (4) any plan must have the approval and support of the American people.

Ashland Group Guests Here

Five members of the Ashland Aerie of Eagles were guests of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Mansfield Eagles at a picnic Monday evening at South park. Thirty were in attendance. Hearts were the diversion with prizes won by Mrs. Pangle, Mrs. Freer, Mrs. George Berg, Mrs. Allen, Miss Catherine Heichel, Mrs. Harry McGee, Mrs. Beck, Mrs. Earl Stutz, Mrs. Alex Turner and Mrs. Roy Hartman.

Plans for the party were in charge of Miss Ethyle Duffer and Miss Catherine Heichel. The drill team under the leadership of Mrs. William Keller and members of the Mansfield lodge will go to Ashland Aug. 25 to give a fancy floor drill and to organize a drill team for the Ashland Eagles.

Yankee WACs Meet British Army Women

By RUTH COWAN
(AP Features)

LONDON — Britain's women soldiers are giving Americas' girls in khaki the "once-over" — and vice versa.

The WACs are arriving with respect and admiration for the magnificent work the British ATS are doing. The ATS are welcoming the comparative newcomers in military service and giving them the benefit of their nearly five years experience.

But women being women, the ATS and WACs are checking up with each other on some very special interests — clothes, pay, work, regulations regarding makeup and dates.

A girl private in the ATS wants to know how many pairs — and kinds— of stockings Uncle Sam issued to girl privates in the WACs And the WACs want to know if the British girls get girdles

Well, in the matter of stockings Uncle Sam is more generous than John Bull. The WACs get four pairs of cotton and four pairs of rayon. The ATS get four pairs of lisle.

A WAC officer on duty at a station where ATS are working told me the latter didn't think much of the WACs cotton leg-gear. For one thing the ATS lisle stockings are of the same shade as their uniforms while those of the WACs are a slightly off-tone.

WACS can wear rayon stockings only when off duty. Only ATS officers can wear rayon. At present WACs can get rayon stockings—limited to one or two pairs at a time—at the U. S. army post exchanges. ATS buy theirs in shops with coupons. So far the WACs, who are arriving fully equipped, have not been given British clothing coupons.

But while Uncle Sam does hand out more stockings, more shirts and more of several other items of apparel, he is giving the ATS some ground to feel sorry for the WASs The ATS get two nice pink corset-belts, as they call em, but Uncle Sam isn't giving any more girdles to his women soldiers.

Recipe Gives Sugar Saving Cake Frosting

By BETSY NEWMAN

Housewives are trying to work out a way to save sugar and to go easy on the butter ration and still send the cake and cookies to the boys at camp, or to supply the lunch box with a tasty sweet. I experimented with cake frosting the other day and found that one-half cup of sugar and the white of egg, supplemented with half a dozen marshmallows made a nice thick frosting for a loaf cake baked in a ginger cake pan It wouldn't frost a layer cake so thickly, but you could put jelly between layers and use the frosting on the top and sides.

Today's Menu.

Smoked Fish — Baked Potatoes
Buttered Beets — Sliced Tomatoes
Cake — Iced Coffee

Smoked Fish.

2 smoked herring or whitefish

These smoked fish are good eaten cold, but I prefer to cook them slightly. They may be put in the oven without any liquid, and warmed through for 5 to 10 minutes, or with just ¼ of a cup of water. They may be heated on top of the stove in the same very little water until they are heated through. Two of the herring will serve 4 well, or 2 or 3 generously

Master Butter Cake Recipe.

⅓ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup granulated sugar
3 eggs
1½ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla or other flavoring

Put butter or other shortening in a large bowl and stir with a large spoon until creamy; add sugar gradually, stirring continually, then add egg yolks that have been beaten until thick and creamy Save out one egg white from the others for frosting. Sift flour, add baking powder and salt, and sift together, then sift gradually into other mixture alternately with milk, beating in well after each addition. Add flavoring with last of milk. Beat 2 egg whites until stiff and add, cutting and folding in until they have disappeared. Do not beat after egg whites are added. Bake in two 9-inch layer cake pans and bake 25 minutes at 375 degrees F.

Marshmallow Frosting.

½ cup sugar
1 egg white
¼ cup water
Pinch salt
6 marshmallows

Boil sugar and water until they spin a fine thread, beat egg white stiff and gradually pour hot syrup into egg white, beating continuously. Drop marshmallows in hot mixture one at a time and beat until melted and frosting is stiff enough to stand up. Spread jelly between layers of cooled cake, then spread frosting on top and sides.

Virginia Finefrock to Become Bride Saturday

Wedding plans, a gay round of parties and last minute shopping are occupying the time of Miss Virginia Finefrock of Louisville, Ky., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H Finefrock, 766 Park avenue west, who came home for her wedding, which will be an event of Saturday.

Miss Finefrock will exchange nuptial vows with Wallace C. Kirby of Louisville Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of her parents. Dean Edward F. Bosworth of Oberlin college, a cousin of the bride, will read the service. The bride-elect has chosen her sister, Mrs. R. F. Beckstett, the former Carolyn Finefrock, as her matron of honor. The bride's brother, Lieut. John Finefrock of Jackson, Miss., will serve as best man

Mrs. J. G Eberly, Marion avenue road, was hostess for a luncheon honoring Miss Finefrock yesterday. Eight guests were present and enjoyed an afternoon of bridge. High score prizes were won by Mrs. Tom Ford and Mrs. Samuel Campbell. The hostess gave the honoree a gift of silver.

Last evening the Roger Grays, Sloane avenue, entertained with a family dinner at their home.

Tomorrow there are two events for the pleasure of the bride-to-be. Miss Louise Krause will entertain with a luncheon at Westbrook Country club and in the evening Mrs. Homer Eldred of Lakewood, the former Sarah Katherine Wallace, will assist her mother with an evening party at the J. G. Wallace home, Parkwood boulevard.

Other parties in her honor were given during the past week. Mrs. William G. Black and daughter, Mrs. Merrill Manz, jr., the former Margaret Black, entertained with a mother-daughter party at the Women's club. Luncheon was served at noon and the remainder of the time was spent in hemming towels for the honoree. The hostesses presented Miss Finefrock with a wedding gift. Garden flowers decorated the club house.

Last Sunday evening Oberlin college friends of the bride-elect feted her with a supper party at the home of Mrs. Melvin Young, Shaker Heights. Mrs. Beckstett was also in attendance. The group surprised her with a shower of miscellaneous gifts.
